HOW TO USE THIS GUIDE

This guide is designed to lead a foreign student from a basic level of English, where English is minimally understood, through an intermediate level and then through an advanced level. Begin at Chapter 1 and work through the guide systematically. (If you already have some knowledge of English, it is still advisable to work through the chapters in this way. If you already know the information in the chapters, you will move through them quickly and it is always good to review.) If you have a question on another grammar point then utilize the Table of Contents to briefly go to that section and become familiar with what you are seeking to know. Then return to where you were and proceed.

Complete all exercises as you come to them. If you are not sure of an answer, review the material and work through them again. Don't just guess! When you complete an exercise, go to the end of the guide to consult the answers. Try to fully understand why each answer is correct before proceeding.

Important lists are found in Part IV. Refer to these as you come to the promptings in the guide. It's difficult for many people to memorize long lists. However, memorizing is not really necessary. If you review the material frequently, you will soon come to recognize these words and phrases in daily reading and conversation. It will serve you well to become very familiar with the information in these lists.

In Part V, a small section is included which covers correct punctuation when writing English. Understanding all aspects of English will help you to grow in the language, as well as correctly and efficiently communicate your ideas.

RULES

Grammar rules are created in order to give structure to the language. Rules reflect the usual behavior of a grammatically constructed pattern. A rule does not necessarily have to behave absolutely the same every time, but will behave according to the rule most of the time.

What you will learn in this guide is the CORRECT way to read, write and speak English. However, English is not always spoken, or written, correctly. This is especially true with conversational English. Often, you will hear others conversing in English who will break many of the rules contained within this guide. DO NOT let that discourage, or dissuade, you from learning English the correct way. Once you become familiar with the correct way of structuring English and gain more practice, you can then expand into more free forms of expression.

PART I – BASIC

1. BASIC ENGLISH SENTENCE STRUCTURE

SUBJECT	VERB	COMPLEMENT	MODIFIER
Darrel	wrote	a novel	last year
They	rode	bicycles	to school

Subject

The subject is the actor of a sentence in active voice. It is the person or thing that performs, or is responsible for, the action of the sentence. It usually begins the sentence and precedes the verb.

Every sentence in English must have a subject. Commands will not have a visible subject, however, the subject [you] is understood. Example: Run quickly! = You run quickly! (See more under Commands later in the book.)

The subject can be a single noun.

Cats chase mice.

Children like candy.

The subject can also be a noun phrase, which is a group of words ending with a noun. A noun phrase CANNOT begin with a preposition (See more under Prepositions and Prepositional Phrases later in the book).

The car is in the garage.

That hot red dress looks fabulous.

Examples of subjects:

Tom likes to go fishing.

The English teacher is a very nice person.

Susan and Alex went to the movie together.

Those boys are good basketball players.

We actors are a happy group.

Verb

The verb follows the subject when the sentence is declarative. A verb normally reveals the action of the sentence. Every sentence in English must have a verb.

The verb can be a single word.

Mary likes chocolate cake.

They play soccer.

The verb can also be a verb phrase. A verb phrase contains one, or more, auxiliary verbs and one main verb. The main verb is always preceded by the auxiliary verbs. (See more about verb structure later in the book.)

Martha has been talking to her new friend.

Terry is visiting his aunt today.

Examples of verbs and verb phrases:

Jerry has returned from lunch.

The storm made a lot of noise.

George is playing in a tournament tomorrow.

I will go to bed soon.

Sally was jealous of Lisa's new dress.

Complement (Object)

A complement (object) provides more information about the verb. Often, it consists of a noun, or noun phrase, and will usually follow the verb in a sentence relaying active voice.

A complement (object) CANNOT begin with a preposition (See more under Prepositions and Prepositional Phrases later in the book).

A complement (object) answers the question what? or whom?

Examples of complements:

Jack threw the stone far.

(What did Jack throw?)

The hungry bird ate a worm.

(What did the bird eat?)

He called Janice after the party.

(Whom did he call?)

She was chewing gum in class.

(What was she chewing?)

(Whom did the ball hit?)

Modifier

A modifier tells the time, place, or manner of action. The modifier usually follows the complement. Not every sentence requires a modifier.

Prepositional phrases are commonly used as modifiers (See more under Prepositions and Prepositional Phrases later in the book).

Examples of prepositional phrases:

under the house, after breakfast, in the morning

Adverbs and adverbial phrases are also used as modifiers, or modifiers of time. A modifier of time will usually come last when more than one modifier is used.

Examples of adverbs and adverbial phrases:

yesterday, quickly, last semester, overhead, quite awful

A modifier answers the question of where? When? or how?

Examples of modifiers:

She is earning her degree at Cornell University. (Where is she earning her degree?)

John fell down the stairs (Where did John fall?)

yesterday. (When did John fall?)

The cheetah was running quite fast. (How was the cheetah running?)

We have an appointment at ten o'clock tomorrow. (When do we have an appointment?)

The soldier fired the gun repeatedly. (How did the soldier fire the gun?)

Exercise 1: Identifying Subject, Verb, Complement and Modifier

Mark the subject, verb, complement and modifier in the following sentences. Use an “S” for subject, “V” for verb, “C” for complement and “M” for modifier. NOTE: Remember that not all sentences have a complement or modifier. Also, some sentences can have more than one modifier.

Examples:

Juan / is eating / tacos / at the new restaurant.

S V C M

The girls / are talking / to the boys.

S V C

Madonna / is performing / tonight.

S V M

1. Jerry opened his present.
2. Mr. Johnson drinks coffee every morning.
3. Birds fly.
4. The dog chased the cat up the tree.
5. The wind blew violently.
6. Jimmy scored a goal at the soccer match last Saturday.
7. They ran inside quickly.
8. Bill, George and Alice bought CDs at the music store today.
9. The barrel rolled down the hill.
10. Terry is watching television.

2. NOUNS

A noun can be a person, place, or thing. Nouns can be the actor of a sentence (as the subject), a receiver of the action (as the object/complement), or contained in a prepositional phrase to add more information to the idea of the sentence.

The Noun Phrase

A noun phrase is a group of words that ends with a noun and can contain determiners (a, an, the, these, etc.), adjectives and adverbs. Both subjects and complements often consist of noun phrases. A prepositional phrase is NOT considered a noun phrase.

Count and Non-Count Nouns

A noun that can be counted is called a count noun.

chair – one chair, two chairs, three chairs...

boy – one boy, two boys, three boys...

dog – one dog, two dogs, three dogs...

A noun that cannot be counted is called a non-count noun.

coffee – you cannot say: one coffee, two coffees, etc.

However, you can make some non-count nouns countable by placing them into a countable container.

Can of coffee – one can of coffee, two cans of coffee...

The following chart gives some common non-count nouns and their groupings.

1. WHOLE GROUPS CONSISTING OF SIMILAR ITEMS: jewelry, traffic, clothing, furniture, luggage, scenery, mail, makeup, money, cash, food, fruit, equipment, etc.
2. FLUIDS: water, blood, oil, tea, milk, gasoline, soup, etc
3. SOLIDS: wood, meat, bread, butter, ice, gold, silver, glass, wool, paper, iron, etc.
4. GASES: air, smoke, pollution, nitrogen, oxygen, steam, etc.
5. PARTICLES: sand, salt, sugar, flour, dust, corn, wheat, grass, hair, chalk, dirt, etc.
6. ABSTRACTIONS: advice, beauty, courage, education, energy, fun, grammar, health, help, homework, information, intelligence, knowledge, luck, music, news, peace, progress, slang, sleep, space, time, truth, vocabulary, wealth, work, etc.
7. LANGUAGES: Chinese, English, German, Spanish, etc.
8. FIELDS OF STUDY: chemistry, history, literature, mathematics, etc.
9. RECREATIONAL SPORTS: baseball, chess, football, poker, soccer, tennis, etc.
10. ACTIVITIES (used as gerunds): driving, fishing, hiking, studying, swimming, etc.
11. NATURAL OCCURANCES: darkness, electricity, fire, fog, gravity, hail, heat, humidity, light, lightning, rain, snow, sunshine, thunder, weather, wind, etc.

Some common irregular count nouns are listed below:

child = children	man = men	person = people	woman = women
foot = feet	mouse = mice	tooth = teeth

Exercise 2: Identifying Count and Non-Count Nouns

Identify the following nouns as countable or non-countable by placing a “C” after countable nouns and a “N” after non-countable nouns.

Examples:

radio C	algebra N
minute	clothing	canyon	gas
smoke	food	eye	bus
spoon	advice	milk	math

Articles: A And An

A or an only precede singular count nouns and refer to one thing. Either is used for a general statement, or to introduce a new subject that has not been mentioned before.

A leopard has spots. (in general – speaking of all leopards)
I talked to a girl today. (We are introducing this subject. We don't know which girl.)

A is used with words that begin with a consonant sound. An is used with words that begin with a vowel sound.

a car an elephant

Some words can be confusing because the pronunciation is different from the spelling. Listening to the sound will help determine which article is used.

Words such as union, uniform, university and European, eucalyptus, eulogy have a long “u” sound which is the same sound as y in yellow or yard. Therefore, they are considered to have a consonant sound and a is used before these words.

A yellow dog ran past us. A uniform is required for school.
A yard consists of three feet. I went to school with a European.

Some words have a silent first letter, so the correct article depends on the heard sound. Words such as hot, home and head have a pronounced “h” consonant sound and, thus, begin with a. However, words such as honor, hour and herb have a silent “h” and are considered to have a vowel sound.

It is a hot day. It was an honor to meet the president.

Articles: The

Use the when you know, or assume, that the listener is familiar with the same person, place, or thing that you are talking about.

The earth is a beautiful planet. (There is only one earth.)
The teacher asked me a question. (It is assumed the listener knows your teacher.)

Use the with non-count nouns only when you are speaking specifically. If you are speaking in general, no article is used.

Water is wet. (general)
The water in the stream is cold. (specific water located in the stream)

The same rule applies for plural count nouns. Specific plural count nouns use the, while general plural count nouns do not.

I like apples. (all apples)

The apples on the tree are not ripe. (specific apples on the tree)

USE The WITH	DON'T USE The WITH
Ordinal numbers before nouns the First Amendment, the third floor	Cardinal numbers after nouns Apollo One, floor three, bus fifteen
Schools, colleges, universities (when the phrase begins with one of these words) The School of Fine Arts, the University of Southern California	Schools, colleges, universities (when the phrase begins with a proper noun) Arizona University, Bardstown Community College
Oceans, seas, rivers, gulfs, plural lakes the Pacific Ocean, the Caspian Sea, the Mississippi River, the Gulf of Mexico, the Finger Lakes	Singular lakes Lake Titicaca, Lake Michigan
Mountains (Plural and ranges) the Smoky Mountains, the Andes	Mounts Mount Rushmore, Mount St. Helens
Wars (except world wars) the Vietnam War, the War of 1812	World War One, World War Two
Certain countries or groups of countries with more than one word (except Great Britain) the United States, the United Kingdom, the United Arab Emirates	Countries preceded by New or an adjective such as a direction New Zealand, South Africa, North Korea One word countries China, Australia, Germany, Italy Continents Asia, North America, South America States Kentucky, Alabama, Utah, California

USE The WITH	DON'T USE The WITH
Sun, Moon ,Earth the sun, the moon, the earth	Planets, Constellations Mercury, Saturn, Gemini, Leo
	Sports baseball, volleyball, football, soccer Abstract concepts intelligence, beauty, love Holidays New Years, Christmas, Thanksgiving

Exercise 3: Using Articles

Fill in the blanks of the following sentences using a, an, the, or \emptyset (if no article is needed).

- John is wearing _____ baseball cap today.
- _____ chair is _____ useful piece of furniture.
- _____ chairs in _____ living room are antiques.
- She cried when she peeled _____ onion.
- _____ women like to wear _____ jewelry.
- _____ jewelry that my sister wears is made of _____ gold.

- _____ last time I saw _____ bear, I was travelling in _____ Europe.

Other / Another

Often, correctly using the word other can be confusing. The word another and other are not specific, while the other is specific. If the subject is understood then other can be used as a pronoun. If the understood noun is a plural count noun then other becomes others. (Note: other CANNOT be plural if followed by a noun.) Look at the following examples.

This knife is dull. Please give me another.

(an + other + singular noun = any other knife – not specific)

This knife is dull. Please give me the other.

(the other + singular noun = the only other option – specific)

This cake is delicious. Other cakes are delicious also.

OR This cake is delicious. Others are delicious also.

(other + plural noun = other cakes: not specific) Since the subject is understood from the first sentence, you can omit the plural noun “cakes” in the second sentence and pluralize other to others.

These apples are bad. I want the other apples.

OR These apples are bad. I want the others.

(the other + plural noun = other apples: specific) Since the subject is understood from the first sentence, you can omit the plural noun “apples” in the second sentence and pluralize the other to the others.

You can also substitute other + one (for a singular noun) and other + ones (for a plural noun.)

This knife is dull. Please give me another one. (not specific)

This knife is dull. Please give me the other one. (specific)

This cake is delicious. Other ones are delicious also. (not specific)

These apples are bad. I want the other ones. (specific)

Exercise 4: Using Other / Another

Fill in the blanks of the following sentences with the correct form of other or another.

1. I received two gifts for my birthday. One was from my parents. _____ one was from my brother.
2. This pie is fantastic! Can I have _____ piece?
3. These pants don't fit well. Let me try _____ ones.
4. I have a large stamp collection. The stamps in this section are from the United States. _____ are from _____ places in the world.
5. Joshua likes to wear Nike shoes. He won't wear any _____ brand.
6. I'm almost finished with my homework. I just need _____ ten minutes.
7. John, Melissa and I are going to the movies. _____ are going to the Craft Fair.
8. This house is brand new. _____ house is really old.
9. We like to swim. _____ like to surf, and still _____ like to ski.
10. You can buy this shirt and _____ one. Which _____ would you like?

Determiners of Quantity

Words that determine quantity are used to show how much of something to which you are referring. Some expressions of quantity are only used with count nouns, some are only used with non-count nouns and others are used with both. Study the chart below.

Determiners of Quantity	With Count Nouns	With Non-Count Nouns
one each every	one ball each ball every ball	∅ ∅ ∅
two, three, etc. both a couple of a few several many a number of	two balls both balls a couple of balls a few balls several balls many balls a number of balls	∅ ∅ ∅ ∅ ∅ ∅ ∅
a little much a great deal of	∅ ∅ ∅	a little water much water a great deal of water
no some/any a lot of/lots of plenty of most all	no balls some/any balls a lot of/lots of balls plenty of balls most balls all balls	no water some/any water a lot of/lots of water plenty of water most water all water

Consider the sentence structure to determine whether a singular or plural verb is used with a determiner of quantity. Sentences that begin with words that indicates portions, such as: percent, fraction, part, majority, some, all, none, remainder, etc., look at the noun of the prepositional phrase (object of the preposition) in order to determine whether or not to use a singular or plural verb.

RULE: If the object of the preposition is singular, use a singular verb. If the object of the preposition is plural, use a plural verb.

Example 1:

Half of the dresses are dirty.

In this sentence, half is the subject and of the dresses is a prepositional phrase which gives reference to what half is referring. In this case, the countable noun dresses requires a plural verb.

Example 2:

Half of the sugar is gone.

In this sentence, half is the subject, but the non-countable noun sugar in the modifying prepositional phrase requires a singular verb.

More examples:

Two-thirds of the work is complete.

Two-thirds of the workers are angry.

A high percentage of the population is educated.

A high percentage of the people are happy.

The majority of Congress has voted for the bill.

The majority of Senators have voted favorably.

Also, when the subject is a sum of money or a period of time, a singular verb is used.

Fifteen dollars is a high price to pay for entering the movies.

Five years is the maximum sentence for that offense.

Exercise 5: Determining Quantity

Cross out the words that CANNOT be used to complete each sentence correctly. An example is given in sentence number two.

Collective Nouns

Some nouns reflect a group of people or animals and are usually singular. Following are examples of some common collective nouns.

Army	Choir	Congress	Government	Minority	Pack
Audience	Class	Crew	Group	Orchestra	Set
Band	Clump	Family	Herd	Police	Staff
Bunch	Colony	Flock	Jury	Pair	Team
Bundle	Committee	Gang	Majority	Public organization

Our class is going on a field trip today.
 The pack of dogs was chasing the deer.
 The public is against the war.
 Our team is playing the champions next week.

Nouns That Are Always Plural

Some nouns are always plural and cannot be singular, unless used in the phrase “a pair of _____”.

Binoculars	Eyeglasses	Pants	Scissors	Slacks	Tongs
Goggles	Jeans	Pliers	Shorts	Trousers	Tweezers

My favorite jeans are in the washer.
 This pair of jeans needs to be washed.
 My eyeglasses are new.
 This pair of eyeglasses is new.

Nouns That Function As Adjectives

Many nouns can function as adjectives when they are coupled with other nouns. The first noun acts to describe the second noun. Nouns which function as adjectives are always singular, even when they modify a plural noun.

The car doors have all been replaced.
 We hurried to get to the train station.
 This gold coin is worth a lot.

When number noun combinations are used, they are always hyphenated.

The hike was eight hours to the temple.
 These tickets cost forty dollars.

It was an eight-hour hike to the temple.
 These are forty-dollar tickets.

3. VERBS

Verbs indicate the action of the actors (nouns) in a sentence and can be single, or can be verb phrases that contain auxiliaries, which always precede the main verb. Verb forms reveal Past, Present, or Future tenses and are used in their infinitive form, or are changed to a Simple, Continuous, or Perfect form.

Study the following Regular Verb Conjugation Chart and Verb Tense Usage Chart, and refer back to them as you work through the verb section.

Regular Verb Conjugation Chart

Study the following chart. Notice how the verb changes in its simple form, depending on the noun (pronouns are used in the chart) and how the auxiliary verb changes in the continuous and perfect form of the verb phrase. This same pattern works for all regular verbs. NOTE: Changes in the verb forms are in bold.

		Present	Past	Future
Simple	I	work	worked	will work
	he, she, it	works	worked	will work
	we, they	work	worked	will work
Continuous	I	am working	was working	will be working he, she, it	is working	was working	will be working we, they	are working	were working	will be working Perfect	I	have worked	had worked	will have worked he, she, it	has worked	had worked	will have worked we, they	have worked	had worked	will have worked

Verb Tense Usage Chart

Study the following chart which shows the use of each verb tense with an example.

Tense	Verb (to work)	Use	Example
Present Simple	I work	* Regular Activities	* I work in a large building
Present Continuous	I am working	* Continuous action; present time	* I am working at the moment
Present Perfect	I have worked	* Finished part of a continuous action * Completed actions in an unfinished period of time * Recent events (no time mentioned) * Past action with a result in present * Experiences (no time mentioned)	* I have worked nine hours today * I have worked several weekends this month * I have just started * I have worked long hours so I need a vacation * I have worked on many accounts
Present Perfect Continuous	I have been working	* Actions begun in the past which continue to present	* I have been working since 6 a.m.
Past Simple (aka Simple Past)	I worked	* Finished actions at a specific time in the past	* I worked last Saturday
Past Continuous	I was working	* Continuous actions at a specific time in the past	* I was working when lunch arrived
Past Perfect	I had worked	* Actions before a specific time in the past	* I had worked a lot before lunch arrived.
Past Perfect Continuous	I had been working	* Past continuous action	* I had been working for another company
Future Simple	I will work	* Predictions * Spontaneous decisions or offers	* I will work this weekend * I will work for you tomorrow
Future Continuous	I will be working	* Future continuous actions	* I will be working when the owner arrives.
Future Perfect	I will have worked	Completed future action	* I will have worked here 3 years tomorrow.
Future Perfect Continuous	I will have been working	* Continuous future action completed at a given time	* I will have been working 12 hours by the time I leave tonight

NOTE: Refer to the Perfect Continuous forms of the verb later in the book.

Present Simple

The present simple tense generally expresses events, or situations, that exist usually, always, or habitually. They have existed in the past, exist now (in the present) and will probably exist in the future.

Ms. Bailey teaches English.

Susie brushes her teeth every day.

Present simple is used to express a state or condition (stative), or habitual action.

Examples of present simple tense:

Fresh bread smells wonderful.	(stative)
John takes the bus to school usually .	(habitual)
Mary always sings in the church choir.	(habitual)
I understand what you're saying.	(stative)
My new car runs great!	(stative)

Present Continuous (Progressive)

The present continuous tense expresses an action which began in the past, is in progress now and will probably continue into the future.

Study the following formula and timeline for present continuous use.

subject +	am
	is	+ verb + ing . . .
	are

The present continuous uses present conjugated forms of the auxiliary verb to be with the “ing”, form of the action verb.

Ms. Bailey is teaching right now.
(She will probably continue teaching.)

Examples of present continuous tense:

The boys are playing ball.
I am riding my bike.
She is watching the ball game.
Tom is chewing gum.
The students are calling for a boycott.

Present continuous is also commonly used in English to express a continuous action in the future by adding a time word to the sentence.

My plane is leaving tomorrow.
My uncle is arriving from Germany at 7:00 p.m.
Next year, we are camping in the mountains.

Present Perfect

The present perfect tense expresses an action that occurs before another time, or event.

The present perfect tense uses the present conjugated forms of the auxiliary verb to have with the past participle form of the action verb.

Study the following formula and timeline for present continuous use.

subject + has have + verb in past participle. . .

The boss has left the office.

Examples of present perfect:

I have seen the movie already.

Sally has lost her favorite ring.

Tom and Hank have ridden horses before.

We have won the championship!

The rabbit has eaten all its food.

Exercise 6: Using the Present Tense Forms of Verbs

Fill in the blanks with the correct present tense form of the verb in parentheses. NOTE: You may need to consult the irregular verb list at the end of the book.

1. John _____ (sleep) on the couch at the moment.
2. My dad always _____ (sit) in that chair.
3. I _____ (like) to go to the movies on the weekends.
4. The children _____ (play) at the neighbor's house today.
5. The company _____ (build) a new store.
6. Water _____ (wash) away dirt.
7. My little brother _____ (eat) all the candy! It's all gone!
8. Jane _____ (read) her favorite book now.
9. Those boys _____ (scare) that cat many times before.
10. My wife and I _____ (cry) when we watch sad movies.

Past Simple

The past simple tense is an action that began and ended at one particular time in the past.

It snowed yesterday.

Examples of past simple tense:

The pack of dogs ran through the woods.

Mike fell on the slippery ice.

Molly and Rita embraced at the airport.

The mountain lion attacked the herd of cattle during the night.

George ate all his dinner.

Past Continuous (Progressive)

The past continuous tense normally links an action in the past with another past action. The first past action continues through the second past action.

Study the following timeline for past continuous use.

The past continuous uses present conjugated forms of the auxiliary verb to be with the “ing”, form of the action verb.

Jack was eating when I arrived.
(Jack started to eat before I arrived.
He continued eating after I arrived.
Both actions are in the past.)

There are different sentence structure formulas depending on variations in past continuous use. Study the following examples:

- The following formula is used when an action was taking place in the past and was interrupted by another action.

subject + past continuous + when + subject + simple past tense. . .

OR

when + subject + simple past tense + subject + past progressive. . .

Jerry was painting a picture when we arrived at his house.

OR

When we arrived at his house, Jerry was painting a picture.

Alfred, Ann and I were playing cards when the lights went out.

OR

When the lights went out, Alfred, Ann and I were playing cards.

- The following formula is used when two actions occur at the same time in the past.

subject + past continuous + while + subject + past continuous. . .

OR

while + subject + past continuous + subject + past continuous. . .

My mother was gardening while my father was mowing the lawn.

OR

While my father was mowing the lawn, my mother was gardening.

The children were crying while the clowns were performing.

OR

While the clowns were performing, the children were crying.

NOTE: The following sentence structure is also possible, but is not commonly used.

subject + simple past + while + subject + past continuous. . .

I fed our cat while my sister was taking a nap.

- Past continuous can also be used by itself to indicate that something was occurring at a specific time in the past.

subject + was were + verb + ing . . .

The moon was shining brightly last night.

The girls were laughing at his joke yesterday in class.

Past Perfect

The past perfect tense links an action which was started and finished before another past action occurred.

Study the following formula and timeline for past perfect:

subject + had + verb in past participle. . .

The past perfect tense uses the past conjugated form of the auxiliary verb to have with the past participle form of the action verb.

Jack had eaten by the time I arrived.
(Jack started and finished eating by the time I arrived. Both actions are in the past.)

The past perfect tense is normally used with words such as before, when, after, since, by the time, etc. Study the following formulas for past perfect used with these words. As in the first example, sentences for these formulas can begin with the second clause. Just remember to add a comma between the clauses when doing so.

subject + past perfect + before when after + subject + simple past since by the time

before when after + subject + simple past + subject + past perfect since
by the time

The students had studied before they took the test.

OR

Before they took the test, the students had studied.

I had finished mowing when the storm came.

OR

When the storm came, I had finished mowing.

Jerrod left school after he had taken his exams.

OR

After he had taken his exams, Jerrod left school.

Six years had passed since I last saw her.

OR

Since I last saw her, six years had passed.

Joan had already performed by the time her parents arrived.

OR

By the time her parents arrived, Joan had already performed.

Exercise 7: Using the Past Tense Forms of Verbs

Fill in the blanks with the correct past tense form of the verb in parentheses. NOTE: You may need to consult the irregular verb list at the end of the book.

1. She _____ (talk) on the phone when the doorbell rang.
2. Yesterday, I _____ (catch) a big fish on our camping trip.
3. Our group _____ (hike) the full length of the Inca Trail last week.
4. The bear _____ (climb) a tree before the dogs got there.

8. Mary _____ (watch) a movie when her aunt called from New York.
9. Jason _____ (fish) in the pond when he saw a big snake.
10. The plumber _____ (find) the source of the water leak.

Future Simple

The future simple tense is an action which occurs at one particular time in the future.

The future simple tense uses the modal auxiliary verb will with the infinitive form of the action verb.

It will snow tomorrow.

Examples of future simple tense:

1. I will go to the store after lunch.
2. Randy will travel to Europe this summer.
3. Many birds will migrate south for the winter.

Future Continuous (Progressive)

The future continuous tense is an action that will have already started by the time another action occurs and will probably continue after.

The future continuous tense is normally used with words such as before, when, after, since, by the time, etc.

The future continuous tense uses the modal auxiliary verb will + the verb be + the “ing” form of the action verb.

Jack will be eating when I arrive.
(Jack will start to eat before I arrive and will probably continue eating afterwards. Both actions are in the future.)

Examples of future continuous tense:

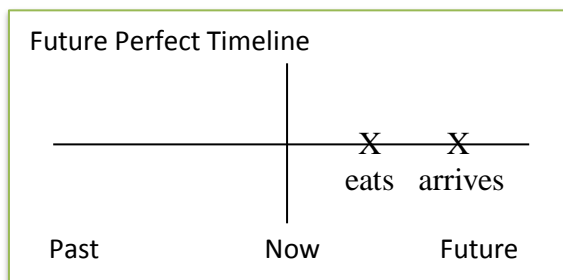

1. It will be raining when our plane lands in London.
2. Madonna will be signing autographs after the concert.
3. Joe will be participating in the competition this summer.

Future Perfect

The future perfect tense is a future action that has started and finished before another future action occurs.

The future perfect tense is normally used with words such as before, when, after, since, by the time, etc.

The future perfect tense uses modal auxiliary verb will + the verb be (have) + the past participle form of the action verb.

Sally will have eaten when Sue arrives.
(Sally starts and finishes eating by the time Sue arrives. Both actions are in the future.)

Examples of the future perfect tense:

1. The pirates will have buried the treasure by the time the ships arrive.
2. John will have scored 40 points by the end of the game.
3. My parents will have had three children after this baby is born.

Exercise 8: Using the Future Tense of Verbs

Fill in the blanks with the correct future tense form of the verb in parentheses. NOTE: You may need to consult the irregular verb list at the end of the book.

1. Steve, Lucy and I _____ (go) to Harvard University this fall.
2. I _____ (start) classes by the time Rachel returns from Europe.
3. Rachel _____ (join) me in class when she returns.
4. I _____ (think) about Rachel until she returns safely.
5. My cat _____ (cry) when I get home because she is hungry.
6. Our dog, Rufus, _____ (travel) with us this summer.
7. My letter _____ (arrive) to Rita by the time I get there.
8. The pilot said that it _____ (rain) when we arrive in Brazil.
9. My sister _____ (marry) this coming June.
10. Tom _____ (eat) three hamburgers when he finishes this one.

The Perfect Continuous (Progressive) Tense

The perfect continuous tense are used to express the duration between two actions or events. Often, an expression of time is used with perfect continuous tenses.

Study the conjugation chart below. NOTE: Changes in the verb forms are in bold.

	Present	Past	Future
I	have been studying	had been studying	will have been studying
he, she, it	has been studying	had been studying	will have been studying we, they	have been studying	had been studying	will have been studying

Present Perfect Continuous (Progressive)

The present perfect continuous tense is an event in progress, which started in the past and continues to the present. It will probably continue into the future.

Study the following formula and timeline for present perfect continuous (progressive):

subject + has have + been + verb + ing . . .

Sue has been studying for two hours.
(Sue started studying and continues to study up to the present. She will probably continue to study.)

NOTE: The present perfect continuous tense is normally used with words such as before, when, after, since, by the time, etc.

Examples of present perfect continuous tense:

1. I have been working on the car engine since this morning.
2. Ruth has been babysitting the neighbor's kids for six hours.
3. The carnival employees have been working since 5 a.m. this morning.

Past Perfect Continuous (Progressive)

The past perfect continuous tense is an event that was in progress when another past event occurred.

Study the following formula and timeline for past perfect continuous (progressive):

subject + had + been + verb + ing . .

Sue had been studying for two hours before her friend arrived.
 (Sue had started and finished studying before her friend arrived.)

NOTE: The past perfect continuous tense is normally used with words such as before, when, after, since, by the time, etc.

Examples of past perfect continuous tense:

1. He had been drinking when the accident occurred.
2. Sarah had been exercising before the surgery.
3. The horses had been ridden many times before the ranch was sold.

Future Perfect Continuous (Progressive)

The future perfect continuous tense reflects an event that will have happened before another future event occurs.

Study the following formula and timeline for future perfect continuous (progressive):

subject + will + have + been + verb + ing...

Sue will have been studying for two hours when her friend arrives.
 (Sue starts and finishes studying before her friend arrives. Both actions are in the future.)

NOTE: The future perfect continuous tense is normally used with words such as before, when, after, since, by the time, etc.

Examples of future perfect continuous tense:

1. Larry will have been exercising for two hours before we go to dinner.
2. My kids will have been playing outside all afternoon by the time night falls.
3. We will have been walking for three hours before the first break.

Exercise 9: Using the Perfect Continuous Tense of Verbs

Fill in the blanks with the correct perfect continuous tense form of the verb in parentheses.

1. John _____ (hunt) for six hours when the sun goes down.
2. Sally and Mary _____ (play) together for three hours.
3. Our fans _____ (cheer) until the other team scored.
4. Ralph and I _____ (shop) all day.
5. The truck _____ (make) bad noises until we got it fixed.
6. All the turkey _____ (eat) by the time we arrive.

4. LINKING VERBS

A verb that can be immediately followed by an adjective is called a linking verb. The adjective that follows the verb describes the subject of the sentence. The verb “links” the adjective to the subject it describes.

Common verbs which are followed by an adjective are given below.

feel, look, smell, sound, taste appear, seem become (also the verbs get, turn, and grow when they mean “become”)

*NOTE: The verb be can also be used as an auxiliary (is watching), to link a noun with the main subject (Jack is a professional), or to link a prepositional phrase to the main subject (Jack is at the office). It is only considered a linking verb when it is used to link an adjective to the main subject (Jack is intelligent).

Examples of linking verbs:

This pie tastes delicious.

Jeff became frightened when he saw the snake.

The weather turned cold overnight.

Ellen feels confident about the competition.

Grandma’s breakfast smells delicious.

5. CONTINUOUS VERSUS NON-CONTINUOUS VERBS

As we have seen, the continuous (progressive) tense is used to describe an action that is occurring at a particular point in time; it is an action in progress. However, there are some exceptions of when to use the continuous tense with certain verbs.

Non-Continuous Verbs

The following verbs are used in a non-continuous form. There are several categories in which these verbs are categorized.

Mental and Emotional States believe	like	recognize dislike	love	remember doubt	hate	suppose

imagine	prefer	understand know	realize	want

Examples:

CORRECT: He doubts she is sincere.

INCORRECT: He is doubting she is sincere.

CORRECT: Sarah hates her new hair style.

INCORRECT: Sarah is hating her new hair style.

CORRECT: Jonathon understands the assignment.

INCORRECT: Jonathon is understanding the assignment.

Sense

appear	seem	taste
hear	smell
see	sound

Examples:

CORRECT: The answer appears correct.

INCORRECT: The answer is appearing correct.

CORRECT: The roast smells good.

INCORRECT: The roast is smelling good.

CORRECT: The band sounds great.

INCORRECT: The band is sounding great.

Communication

agree	mean
astonish	please
deny	promise
disagree	satisfy impress	surprise

Examples:

CORRECT: Margaret agrees with Michael.
INCORRECT: Margaret is agreeing with Michael.

CORRECT: The boy impresses his coach.
INCORRECT: The boy is impressing his coach.

CORRECT: George promises to finish his homework.
INCORRECT: George is promising to finish his homework.

Other States

belong	deserve	matter
concern	fit	need consist	include	owe contain	involve	own cost	lack	possess depend

Examples:

CORRECT: He said it depends on how late he works.
INCORRECT: He said it is depending on how late he works.

CORRECT: The project involves a lot of work.
INCORRECT: The project is involving a lot of work.

CORRECT: The length of the show doesn't matter.
INCORRECT: The length of the show isn't mattering.

Mixed Verb Forms

There are also some verbs which can be used, both in a continuous and non-continuous form. It depends on the meaning of the verb as to which form is used. Following are some of the most important verbs to consider:

Continuous Meanings

Feel = “to physically feel” – I’m feeling tired today.

See = “to visit” – Joe is seeing his doctor.

Think = “to use the brain” – We are thinking deeply about the question.

Appear = “to be on stage/perform” – Madonna is appearing at the Waldorf stadium tonight.

Look = “to stare at” – She is looking at me intently.

Taste = “to use the mouth” – I’m tasting my mom’s apple pie.

Non-continuous Meanings

Feel = “to have an opinion” – Mary feels she should be able to go on the trip also.

See = “to understand” – I see what you’re saying.

Think = “to have an opinion” – I think you should visit your parents.

Appear = “to look like” – The project appears to be difficult.

Look = “to seem” – This contest looks easy.

Taste = “to have a taste” – Her muffins taste great!

6. COMMON DISTINGUISHMENTS

There + Be

When using the combination of there + be, there is called an “expletive”. It has no meaning as a vocabulary word. It simply introduces the idea that something exists in a particular place. When beginning a sentence with this combination, the subject follows the verb. NOTE: There is never considered the subject of the sentence.

There + be + subject + expression of place

There is a clean towel in the linen closet.

Verb subject expression of place

There are six kittens under my bed.
Verb subject expression of place

There has been a fire at the warehouse.
Verb subject expression of place

Sometimes the expression of place is omitted when the meaning is clear.

There are seven continents. (The implied expression of place is clearly in the world.)

Beginning a Sentence with Here or There

When a sentence begins with here or there, the subject is located after the verb.

NOTE: Here or there is NEVER considered the subject of the sentence.

Examples:

Here was the accident.
verb subject

There are the girls.
verb subject

Here is the definition of the word.

There was a loud explosion.

Say / Tell

Say and tell both mean to communicate verbally with someone, but they are usually used differently. Normally, you say something and you tell someone something.

You say something

Jeff said that he was tired.
Jennifer says you have a new job.
Patricia said, "I love you."

You tell someone something

Jeff told Sam that he was tired.
Jennifer tells me you have a new job.
Patricia told John that she loves him.

Tell uses an object directly following.

Bob told the boss that he wasn't working tomorrow.
Janice told me that she loves John.

Say uses the word "to" or "that" before the object.

Bob said to the boss that he wasn't working tomorrow.
Janice said to me that she loves John.
Bob said that he wasn't working tomorrow.
Janice said that she loves John.

When using direct speech, say is normally used.

Amanda said, "Sweetheart, I'm going to work now."
"John, that's a beautiful car!" George said.

Sometimes tell is used in direct speech if it is an instruction, or information. (Notice the object directly after tell as described above.)

Rebecca told her assistant, "Open the door for the caterer."
He told me, "This is the key to the front door."

Say and tell cannot be used with reported questions. Ask, or a similar verb, must be used.

Roy asked if I had ever been to Miami.
Mary's mother asked what I wanted to eat.
The policeman asked me where I lived.
He asked if she wanted to leave.

Tell + object + infinitive is used to give orders, or advice.

The teacher told the child to sit down.
She told me to wait in the lobby.
Tell Bill to have a great trip to Europe.

Exercise 10: Using Say and Tell

Fill in the blanks with the correct form of the verb say or tell.

1. Jason _____ his friend to shut up.
2. Jane _____ that she is feeling sick.
3. My English teacher _____ I'm learning quickly.
4. The driver _____, "I'll pick you up at the airport."
5. Please, _____ me where to find the washing detergent.
6. The angry mother _____, "I _____ you not to do that!"
7. I heard Peter _____ that he was going out with Becky tonight.
8. The security guard _____ me to get off the stage.
9. _____ me the story again!
10. Will you _____ John to meet me after work?

Know / Know How

The verb know, when used by itself, is usually followed by a noun, a prepositional phrase, or a sentence.

She knew the answer.

Everyone knows about gravity.

Jason knew that he was going to be in trouble.

Know how is used to indicate a skill, or ability to do something. This form is followed by the infinitive form of a verb.

Jim knows how to make cool inventions.

Monkeys know how to use primitive tools.

Do you know how to make fudge brownies?

Exercise 11: Using Know and Know How

Fill in the blanks with the correct form of know or know how.

1. The boys _____ to catch rabbits with snares.
2. Do you _____ to get to the airport from here?
3. I didn't _____ that Jenny was pregnant.
4. I am amazed that Jack _____ where to go from here.
5. Some primitive tribes _____ to perform surgery long ago.

Need / In Need Of

Usually, when the subject of a sentence is an animate object, the verb need is followed by an infinitive verb.

Hector needs to get a haircut.
We need to leave now.
My dog needs to learn new tricks.

Usually, when the subject of a sentence is an inanimate object, the verb need is followed by either a gerund (or “ing” verb), or the verb to be followed by the past participle of the action verb.

The grass needs cutting .	OR	The grass needs to be cut .
The motorcycle needs repairing .	OR	The motorcycle needs to be repaired .
The guest list needs writing .	OR	The guest list needs to be written .

Be aware that there are some exceptions to these rules. Sometimes, animate objects follow the second rule.

My dog needs to be fed .	OR	The baby needs to be burped .
The baby needs burping .

Sometimes, inanimate objects follow the first rule.

The buzzer needs to ring before we can leave class.
The grass needs to grow more before I can cut it.

The expression in need of can be used in some cases in place of using the verb need. However, because the word need is not a verb in the phrase in need of, it must be preceded by the verb be.

Darren is in need of a haircut.	(Darren needs a haircut.)
The car was in need of new tires.	(The car needed new tires.)
The girls were in need of prom dresses.	(The girls needed prom dresses.)

Exercise 12: Using Need

Fill in the correct form of the verb in parentheses after the verb need.

1. I need _____ finish) my homework.
2. The bus needs to be _____ (fill) with gas.
3. Mary's garden needs _____ (water).
4. The thief needs to be _____ (punish).
5. Harold will need _____ (make) extra cash for his trip.
6. This problem needs _____ (solve).
7. Nancy needs _____ (wash) the dishes soon.
8. The crops need to be _____ (harvest) before it rains.
9. Stacy and I need _____ (move) to another apartment.
10. That hole in the road needs _____ (fill).

Like / As

The word like is very often misused in conversational English. In written English, like is traditionally used as a preposition (different from like the verb), while as is a conjunction (clause connector).

Like is used to compare only nouns (i.e. use like to say two things are similar, and let the clause that follows tell how they are similar).

The earth, like other planets, spins on an axis.

Like other planets, the earth spins on an axis.

As is used to compare clauses (i.e. use as if two actions are similar).

A globe spins around an axis, as does the Earth itself.

A few rules of thumb:

1. You should have two verbs in a sentence with an As comparison, one verb in a sentence with a Like comparison.
2. Like comparisons work the same way as noun modifiers-make sure the right nouns are touching!
3. The GMAT tends to use like mostly at the beginning of sentences. It is tough to put like at the end of a sentence and get the meaning right.

A simple rule to follow, which will assist in using these two words correctly, is that the word like is not closely followed by a verb (there is no verb in a prepositional phrase), while as is followed by a clause which contains a verb.

Example:

The new boy acts like a clown. In this sentence, like is correctly used as a preposition. The prepositional phrase does not contain a verb.

The new boy acts as if he were a clown. In this sentence, as is correctly used as a conjunction (connector) between two clauses. Both clauses contain a verb.

More examples:

My sister sings like Mariah Carey.

My sister sings as though she were Mariah Carey.

My neighbor's house is like a zoo.

My neighbor's house is as if it were a zoo.

NOTE: There is no difference of meaning between as if and as though; they can be used interchangeably. Refer to Comparisons for more uses of the connector as.

Exercise 13: Using Like / As

Complete the following sentences with like, or as if / as though.

1. My little brother cries _____ a baby.
2. My stomach felt _____ a train had run through it.
3. Darren appeared _____ he needed help on the exam.
4. The Olympic sprinter can run _____ the wind during competition.
5. The actor plays the part _____ he were the actual character.
6. Margie's computer is so old that it runs _____ a turtle.
7. George's mom is short and fat _____ my mom.
8. Mr. Brown spoke _____ he knew about quantum physics.
9. The winning fans responded _____ their team was the greatest.
10. The winning fans responded _____ a bunch of crazed maniacs.

Between / Among

The word between is always used when talking about a distinct relationship of two individual items, groups, or people.

Examples:

Sally had to choose between the red and white dresses.

Let's keep this secret between you and me.

However, between can also be used when talking about a distinct relationship of more than two individual items, groups, or people

Examples:

Johnny had to decide between going to Europe, buying a new car, or staying in college.

Business negotiations between the governments of the United States, China and South America are going well despite cultural differences.

The word among is used when talking about items, groups, or people in general.

Examples:

Disease spread among the earthquake survivors.

The economic collapse caused panic among investors.

Terry was quite popular among his classmates.

She was relieved to find a friend among strangers.

Business negotiations among governments are going well despite cultural differences. (Compare this to the above example with between, here there is a group of governments rather than a distinct group.)

There is also a difference when using between and among for location.

Example:

The children played between the fields.

The children played among the fields.

The word between in the first sentence gives the idea that the children were playing in a location in the middle of two fields or in a central area which is surrounded by fields.

The word among in the second sentence gives the idea that the children were playing inside and throughout two or more fields.

Exercise 14: Using Between / Among

Complete the following sentences using either between or among.

1. Can you tell the difference _____ this photo and the other one?
2. Joanne found her wallet _____ the bed and dresser.
3. Walter looked for his dog _____ the houses of his neighborhood.
4. Charles and Sandra took a romantic walk _____ the park fountains.
5. John felt at home _____ his classmates at the school reunion.
6. The children couldn't decide _____ chocolate or vanilla ice cream.
7. Ms. Jennings was the most appreciated teacher _____ her colleagues.
8. Our group was the noisiest _____ all the fans that cheered at the game.
9. Walking _____ the veterans' graves made my grandfather very sad.
10. Could you get my keys laying on the table _____ the couch and chair?

7. PROPER USE OF PROBLEM VERBS

It can be quite confusing to distinguish which correct verb to use when it comes to raise/rise, set/sit, or lay/lie. Raise, set and lay are transitive verbs and are followed by an object. Rise, sit and lie are intransitive verbs and are NOT followed by an object.

Study the chart below to understand the correct conjugation and use of these verbs.

Transitive	Intransitive
raise, raised, raised Tony raised his hand	rise, rose, risen Tony rises early set, set, set Julie set the book on my desk	sit, sat, sat I sit in the third row lay, laid, laid Julie is laying the book on my desk	lie, lay, lain John is lying on the floor. (Notice the changed spelling of lie when “ing” is added.) NOTE: The verb lie , which means “not to tell the truth”, is a regular verb

Exercise 15: Using Raise/Rise, Set/Sit and Lay/Lie

Underline the correct word in parentheses in the following sentences.

- Hens (lay, lie) eggs.
- Janice (set, sat) the table for dinner.
- Janice (set, sat) at the table for dinner.
- Mrs. Smith (raises, rises) a garden every year.
- I (laid, lay) my wallet on top of the dresser.
- The ability to succeed (lies, lays) within you.
- The old lady (set, sat) on the bench because she was tired.
- Hot air (raises, rises).
- When I get tired, I (lay, lie) down and take a nap.
- Jennifer (raised, rose) from her seat to pick up her test paper.

Exercise 16: Subject/Verb Agreement

Underline the correct form of the verb in parentheses in the following sentences.

1. The daughter of my best friend (has/have) won the spelling competition.
2. The geese that fly south for the winter (is/are) nesting around the lake.
3. The mayor, together with his wife, (is/are) attending the inaugural ball.
4. John and his wife Mary will (has/have) been married seven year tomorrow.
5. Police cars, which are old and outdated, (is/are) being auctioned off today.
6. Earthquakes around the ring of fire (has/have) been more frequent lately.
7. Joan of Arc, who led many Frenchmen in revolution, (was/were) the subject of my report.
8. The jury, which has been deliberating the Johnson trial, (has/have) been ordered to make a decision soon.
9. The grandson of the late Mr. Hopkins (has/have) inherited the billionaire's estate.
10. Michele, along with Sam and Justin, (is/are) coming for my birthday party.

9. PRONOUNS

Five forms of pronouns exist in English. These are subject pronouns, complement (object) pronouns, possessive pronouns, possessive adjectives and reflexive pronouns.

Subject Pronouns

Subject pronouns are used in place of subject nouns. A singular pronoun is used to refer to a singular noun and a plural pronoun is used to refer to a plural noun.

Subject Pronouns
Singular	Plural
I	We
You	You
He, She, It	They

Examples of subject pronoun use:

I am late for work.
Subject

He owns six dogs and three cats.
Subject

You and I are traveling to Las Vegas this weekend.
Subject

They were worried about making the trip in bad weather.
Subject

A subject pronoun can also be used after the verb be in certain circumstances, such as:

It was I who threw the ball at you. (Notice that I is the subject of “threw the ball”)

The pronoun we, you and us can be directly followed by a noun in order to make it clearer to whom is being referred.

We parents are very concerned about our children.

Comparative (Object) Pronouns

Comparative, or object, pronouns are used in place of the object of the verb. Again, a singular comparative pronoun is used for a singular comparative noun and a plural comparative pronoun is used for a plural comparative noun.

Comparative Pronouns
Singular	Plural
Me	Us
You	You
Him, Her, It	Them

Examples of comparative (object) pronouns:

Sally emailed me.
complement

The merchant offered him a good deal.
complement

I wanted to find you so we could go to the movies.
complement

Jerry told them that he wasn't playing in the game tomorrow.
complement

A sentence can also contain variations in structure, such as containing prepositions and conjunctions followed by clauses. Identifying these various parts of speech will help in determining the correct usage of pronouns.

Alex arrived at the house before her.
preposition complement pronoun

conjunction subject verb clause

NOTE: A clause is a full sentence that has been connected to the first sentence by a conjunction (connector) and, therefore, also has a subject and verb.

Possessive Pronouns

Possessive pronouns show possession of something by someone. They are not followed by nouns, but stand alone. Possessive pronouns replace a noun that is understood by context.

NOTE: You do NOT use apostrophes with possessive pronouns. The pronoun its is different from the word it's, which is a contraction of it is. (For information on the correct use of apostrophes, see the punctuation section.)

Possessive Pronouns
Singular	Plural
Mine	Ours
Your	Yours
His, Hers, Its	Theirs

Examples of possessive pronouns:

That is my money.

John's car is slow and my car is fast.

Our class is boring.

Their dresses are too short.

That is mine. OR That money is mine.

His is slow and mine is fast.

Ours is boring.

Theirs are too short.

Possessive Adjectives

Possessive adjectives are pronouns which are used as adjectives and are located directly before another noun. They do not replace a noun, but modify it.

Possessive Adjectives
Singular	Plural
My	Our
Your	Your
His, Her, Its	Their

Examples of possessive adjectives:

Carol is reading her book.

The bird is grooming its wings.

He received his award this morning.

My homework is due next Monday.

Their names were not called in class.

Reflective Pronouns

Reflective pronouns indicate that the subject of a sentence is both giving and receiving the action of the verb. They are normally located after the verb.

Reflective Pronouns
Singular	Plural
Myself	Ourselves
Yourself	Yourselves
Himself, Herself, Itself	Themselves

NOTE: English never uses the forms hissself or thierselves. These forms are always incorrect.

Notice the difference between the comparative (object) pronoun and the reflective pronoun in the following sentences.

Mary bought her a birthday gift. (her = another person)
 Mary bought herself a birthday gift. (herself = Mary)

Examples of reflective pronouns:

The bird bathed itself in the water hole.
 I hurt myself playing soccer.
 The boys treated themselves to ice cream after school.
 We convinced ourselves not to be scared at the haunted house.
 Protect yourself from the rain by taking an umbrella.

Reflexive pronouns can also be used to give emphasis, showing that the subject did the action alone (you can actually substitute the word alone for the pronoun in this case). When used this way, it usually follows the subject, but not always. It can also be placed at the end of the sentence, often used with the word by (by himself).

I myself believe in ghosts.
 You yourself must choose what you will believe.
 Robert completed the complex puzzle by himself.
 The girls themselves made all the plans for the party.
 We ourselves think the new voting law is unfair.
 You will have to do the work on your car yourself.

Exercise 17: Using Pronouns

Underline the correct form of the pronoun or possessive adjective in the following sentences.

1. I think (he, his, him) is a great teacher.
2. Jason had to get (he, him, himself) ready for school today.
3. That yellow cat over there is (me, mine, my).
4. The snake bit (we, us, our) horse on (it, it's, its) leg.
5. Joanne and (I, me) don't want to go to (him, his, he) party.
6. I can't believe that (you, your) mother doesn't like (our, ours).
7. John thought that (he, his, him) could do the job by (hissself, himself).
8. The cute boy speaks to (she, her) every morning as (they, them, themselves) walk to school.
9. All of (we, us) boy scouts are going camping this weekend.
10. (She, Her) scolded (she, her) dog for ruining (it, its, it's) new toy.

Less – Less is known about this period of history.

Little – Little has been considered about this problem.

Much – Much was discussed at the meeting.

Neither – Neither person was selected for the position.

No one – No one has the keys to the gym.

Nobody – Nobody was at the library.

Nothing – Nothing is going to stop me.

One – One of the clients is unhappy with our work.

Somebody – Somebody needs to call a doctor.

Someone – Someone is stealing money from the register.

Something – Something has gone wrong at work.

The following indefinite pronouns are considered plural and must be followed by plural verbs.

Both – Both are guilty.

Few – Few were happy with the outcome.

Fewer – Fewer are eating healthy in this time.

Many – Many were selected to play in the tournament.

Others – Others can do the job much better.

Several – Several were capable of getting the job done.

The following indefinite pronouns can take either a singular or plural verb depending on the noun used.

All – All the boys are tired of playing.

OR All the time has gone.

Any – Any choices are good.

OR Any choice is good.

More – More colors are good.

OR More color is good.

Most – Most of the fires are quenched.

OR Most of the fire is out.

None – None of the pies have been sold.

OR None of the pie has been eaten.

Some – Some of my friends are coming.

OR Some of my family is coming.

10. QUESTIONS

When forming questions, the auxiliary, or be, verb is placed before the subject. If one of these is not used then a correct form of the verb do should be used. The tense and person are shown only by the auxiliary and not by the main verb.

Yes/No Questions

Some questions can only be answered with either yes, or no. They use this formula:

auxiliary be + subject + verb do, does, did

Is Mark coming with us to the mall?

Was Darrell at work yesterday?

Have you ever been skydiving?

Will Mr. Johnson announce the contest winner today?

Do you know if math homework is due tomorrow?

Does Lisa like roses?

Did Carlton receive his priority package?

Informative Questions

These are questions that require more detailed answers than simply yes or no. More information is being requested. There are three different types of informative questions.

- Who or what questions are requesting information concerning the subject. The subject is unknown.

Who has a question? (Someone has a question.)

What came in the mail today? (Something came in the mail today.)

- Whom and what are considered complement questions. The complement is unknown and information on it is being requested.

NOTE: Who is often misused in spoken English to ask a complement question. However, whom is the correct form in written English to indicate that the question is requesting information on the complement position.

Whom does Jackie see from the office? (Jackie sees someone from the office.)

What are you doing Friday night? (You are doing something Friday night.)

- When, where, why and how questions are similar to complement questions as they are seeking more information about the action of the subject.

When did Erin receive her letter jacket?

Where do you go to get assistance?

Why does Kathy have such a big dog?

How can you make my car go faster?

Embedded Questions

An embedded question is included in a sentence or another question. The word order is different from that in a typical question, except for subject questions. There must NOT be an auxiliary between the question word and the subject in an embedded question.

Normal Question: When will the court hearing begin?
 Embedded Question: They haven't determined when the court hearing will begin.

Normal Question: Why did John hit that girl?
 Embedded Question: I don't understand why John hit that girl.

Question words within a sentence can be single words, or phrases. Phrases include: whose + noun, how many, how much, how long, how often, what time and what kind.

Betty didn't know how many cupcakes to make for the Girl Scout troop.
 I asked Doug how often he jogs every week.
 The girls asked the ranger how far it was to the next camping point.
 We wanted to know what kind of fruit was in this delicious ice cream.
 The boss wanted to know whose break time it was.

When there is an embedded question within a question, the embedded question is seeking the actual information.

Do you know what time it is ?	The questioner is requesting the time.
Could you tell me how to get to the post office ?	The questioner is asking directions.

Exercise 18: Creating Embedded Questions

Complete the following sentences to create embedded questions from the given question.

Example: Why is she angry? I don't know why she's angry.

- Who has seen the new vampire movie?

I'd like to know _____.

- How do you do this algebra homework?

Could you tell me _____?

- Where can I find that new fantasy book?

Tell me _____.

- When will the train arrive?

The travel updates _____.

- Why is Sally crying?

Do you have any idea _____?

Tag Questions

A tag question is placed at the end of a sentence clause which the speaker is uncertain about. The tag question is separated from the main clause by a comma and ends in a question mark.

Follow these guidelines for using tag questions:

- If the main clause is negative then the tag is affirmative. If the main clause is affirmative then the tag is negative.
- Negative forms are usually contracted (She was happy, wasn't she?)
- Use the same auxiliary verb in the tag as in the main clause. If an auxiliary is not used then use do, does, or did.
- Don't change the tense of the verb from the main clause to the tag.
- Use the same subject that is in the main clause for the tag. Always use a subject pronoun for the tag.
- Sentence forms that use there is, there are and it is will have the same use of there, or it, in the tag. (There is enough for everyone, isn't there?)
- The verb have can be used as the main verb (I have a headache), or as an auxiliary verb (Jenny has received her diploma). When have functions as the main verb, a form of do, does, or did must be used (You have a headache, don't you?)

Examples of tag questions:

Eric is in gym class now, isn't he?

Julie isn't in gym class now, is she?

The train will be arriving soon, won't it?

There aren't any potato chips left, are there?

You have a new car, don't you?

Exercise 19: Creating Tag Questions

Complete the following sentences by adding a tag question with the correct form of the verb and subject pronoun.

1. You're learning English quickly, _____?
2. Tommy is going to the party with us, _____?
3. Tom and Andy will be coming to the movies with us, _____?
4. It's a great time of the year for a vacation, _____?
5. There isn't any pizza left from last night, _____?
6. We've already taken that test, _____?
7. Yvette is going to Peru this year, _____?
8. There's plenty of room left in the bus, _____?
9. They shouldn't be playing around that area, _____?
10. You have been to Washington D.C., _____?

Adverbs can be placed in several positions, depending on the sentence.

- Adverbs are often placed at the beginning of a sentence. It is followed by a comma in this instance.

Usually, the girls go to the mall on the weekend.

- Adverbs can also be placed at the end of a sentence.

The girls go to the mall on the weekend usually.

- Adverbs can be placed before simple present and simple past verbs (except be).

The girls usually go to the mall on the weekend.

The girls usually went to the mall on the weekend.

- Adverbs follow the verb be in its simple and past forms.

Joan is normally in the competition. Cows were frequently in the field.

- Adverbs are placed between an auxiliary verb and a main verb.

He has always gone to work early.

- In a question, an adverb is placed directly after the subject.

Does the bus always come on time?

Exercise 20: Using Adjectives and Adverbs

Underline the correct adjective or adverb in parentheses. Then write AJ for adjective, or AV for adverb, in the blank at the end of the sentence to determine in what capacity the chosen word is used.

- Example: He likes (sad, sadly) movies. AJ
1. They sing (good, well). _____
 2. Ellen's chocolate cake is (delicious, deliciously). _____
 3. The students speak (fluent, fluently) English. _____
 4. The students speak English (fluent, fluently). _____
 5. This is an (awesome, awesomely) painting. _____
 6. The lady at the opera sang (beautiful, beautifully). _____
 7. (Incredible, Incredibly), the baby survived the plane crash. _____
 8. That is a (considerable, considerably) fee to enter the game. _____
 9. The fee is (considerable, considerably) more than I expected. _____
 10. He needs to swim (fast, fastly) in order to beat the champion. _____

12. COORDINATING CONJUNCTIONS: PART I

Coordinating conjunctions are words which link, or coordinate, two or more similar words, phrases, or clauses together into one fluid idea. Words that are considered coordinating conjunctions are and, but, or and nor.

Parallel Structure

Parallel structure is when conjunctions are used to connect words or phrases that have the same grammatical function in a sentence. There are several ways to create parallel structure.

- Two nouns are connected by a conjunction.

Laura and her sister are coming to the party.
Roger or Beth will win the election.

- Two verbs are connected by a conjunction.

Michael raised his hand and asked a question.
Denise hesitated but continued the race anyway.

When both verbs contain the same auxiliary verb, the second auxiliary is usually omitted.

Terry is doing his homework and (is) listening to the radio.

When two infinitive verbs are connected, the second to is usually omitted.

The reporter wants to go and (to) interview the celebrity in person.
We want to attend the theater or (to) play a board game tonight.

- Two adjectives are connected by a conjunction.

The singer's voice was tender but strong.
The cake was tasty and sweet.

- Two adverbs are connected by a conjunction.

The thief walked softly and quietly.
The plane was flying fast but low.

A parallel structure can contain more than two parts. When a series of items are connected, commas are used to separate each unit. A comma can be used or omitted before the connector, but the same pattern should be used throughout the text. (See more on comma usage later in the book.)

Paul, John, George, and Ringo formed the Beatles band.
Charlie entered the boat, took to the water, and began fishing.
Our school colors are black, gold, and green.
Paul didn't react peacefully, correctly, or intelligently.

Connected nouns
Connected verbs
Connected adjectives
Connected adverbs

Exercise 21: Using Conjunctions in Parallel Structure

In the following sentences, circle the conjunction, underline the two words it connects and write what the words are in the blank to the right (nouns, verbs, adjectives, or adverbs).

Example: The old lady was extremely kind and gentle. _____ adjectives

1. Sally and Randy went to the dance together. _____
 2. The children played lively and energetically. _____
 3. Johnny is jumping and bouncing on the trampoline. _____
 4. Margaret has lost her earrings but not her bracelet. _____
 5. That color isn't really brown, orange, or red. _____

14. COMPARISONS

Comparisons use adjectives and adverbs to indicate degrees of difference, which can be equal or unequal.

Equal Comparisons

An equal comparison shows that two entities are exactly the same, if positive, or not the same, if negative. The word as is used on either side of the adjective or adverb.

Mary is as tall as her sister. OR Mary is not as tall as her sister.

Sometimes, the word so is used in the first position of a negative comparison.

Mary is not so tall as her sister.

NOTE: In correct English, a subject pronoun is always used after the comparison phrase. This is often misused in speech.

Mary is as tall as she. You are not as old as I.

Examples of equal comparisons:

My brother is as big as an ox.	(adjective)
Robert is as intelligent as Jane.	(adjective)
That sprinter runs as fast as a cheetah.	(adverb)
Our choir sings as well as yours.	(adverb)

Sometimes, nouns can be used in comparative phrases of equality by using the same in front of it.

My car runs the same speed as yours.	My car runs as fast as yours.
Their party ran the same length as the concert.	Their party ran as long as the concert.

NOTE: The opposite of the same as is different from. You should never use different than.

My ice cream is different from yours.
 Their uniforms are different from ours.

Unequal Comparisons

Unequal comparatives show that there is a greater or lesser degree of difference.

The word than is always used at the end of the comparative, unless the object has already been established and is known.

My brother is bigger than your brother. OR My brother is bigger. (object known)

The following rules generally apply to this type of comparative.

- Add -er to the adjective or adverb base of most one and two syllable words. (fast = faster; tall = taller; smart = smarter)
- When the adjective or adverb has three or more syllables then you add the word more without changing the adjective or adverb. (more important; more gorgeous; more intelligent)
- Also, use more with words ending in these suffixes: -ed, -ing, -ful, -ous, -ish. (more enraged, more careful, more caring, more porous, more bullish)
- With one-syllable words that end in a single consonant and are preceded by a single vowel, the consonant is doubled before adding -er (with the exception of w, x and z). (hot = hotter; big = bigger; red = redder)
- When a word ends in a consonant + y, change the y to i and add -er. (clumsy = clumsier, funny = funnier, dry = drier)

NOTE: The suffix -er means the same as more. It is incorrect to use them together. You can NOT say: more nicer, more uglier, more faster

Using much or far before the unequal comparative intensifies the meaning even more.

Your outfit is far more fashionable than mine.

A jet is much faster than a plane.

Silver is much less desirable than gold.

Nouns can also be used in comparisons, but the correct determiners must be used with countable or uncountable nouns.

Countable nouns use more, fewer, less + noun + than

He has more comics than me.

Non-countable nouns use many, much, little, less + noun + as

They have as much food as we.

Examples of countable and non-countable nouns used in comparatives:

Emily has as little money as I.	(non-countable)
I have fewer coins than Emily.	(countable)
My friend doesn't have as much work as Sam.	(non-countable)
I have more classes than my friend.	(countable)

Positives, Comparatives and Superlatives

Most adjectives have three forms: the positive (sad), the comparative (sadder) and the superlative (saddest).

If the adjective has three or more syllables then it will usually begin with more or less, or most or least, without changing the adjective. Study the following chart.

Positive	Comparative	Superlative
large	larger	largest pretty	prettier	prettiest intelligent	less intelligent	least intelligent beautiful	more beautiful	most beautiful

Adverbs are also sometimes used as comparatives and superlatives. Usually, adverbs have three or more syllables. If so, they are used with more or less for the comparative and most or least for the superlative.

She worked more painstakingly than Ralph. (comparative)
 He behaved more comically than all the other clowns. (comparative)
 That bull acts the most chaotic of all. (superlative)
 That kid cries the most pitifully of all the rest. (superlative)

The positive doesn't show any comparison, but simply describes the quality of a person, group, or thing.

The girl is pretty.
 The doctor is smart.

The comparative shows a greater, or lesser, degree of difference between two people, groups, or things. The word than is used if the object of comparison is mentioned. It is not needed if the object of comparison is understood.

His dad is taller than yours. OR His dad is taller.
 This disease is more contagious than that one. OR This disease is more contagious.
 Martin is less dynamic than his brother. OR Martin is less dynamic.

The superlative compares three or more people, groups, or things and shows which one is superior, or inferior, to the others.

Sally is the niciest girl in our class.
 Ralph is the most successful graduate of our school.
 This computer is the least expensive of all of them.

The phrase "one of the" is commonly used with superlative form to show that one person, group, or thing out of a number of people, groups, or things is the most, or least. When this phrase is used, the "group" noun is plural while the verb is singular.

One of the fastest planes in the world is the Concord.

Irregular Comparatives and Superlatives

A few adjectives and superlatives used in comparative and superlative phrases are irregular. Study the examples in the chart below.

Adjective or Adverb	Comparative	Superlative far	farther further	farthest furthest little	less	least much or many	more	most good or well	better	best
bad or badly	worse	worst

Examples of irregular comparatives and superlatives:

Sally's cooking is much better than Mary's.
My car is running worse now than it did yesterday.
I live farther away than you.
Why do these shoes cost less than those?

Numbered Comparatives

Numbered comparatives can include such words or phrases as: half, twice, three times, four times, etc. The phrase as much as is used for non-countable nouns and as many as is used for countable nouns. The phrase more than is NOT used with numbered comparatives. It is incorrect to say four times more than, etc.

This rock weighs twice as much as that one.
Ronald has four times as much money as Paul.
The cat had half as many kittens as before.

Double Comparatives

When a sentence begins with a comparative structure then the second clause must also begin with a comparative.

The harder you study, the easier the class will be.
The sooner you get to work, the earlier you can go home.
The more you resist, the harder it will be.
The more he studied, the better he got at Math.

No Sooner

If the phrase no sooner begins a sentence, the word than must begin the second clause. Also, notice that the auxiliary verb is placed before the subject in this sentence structure.

No sooner had Lisa hung out the laundry than it began to rain.
No sooner will I receive my check than it will all be spent on bills.
No sooner had he began the competition than he felt a tear in his leg muscle.

Exercise 23: Using Comparisons

Fill in the blank with the correct form of the adjectives and adverbs in parentheses. Supply any other words that may be necessary. Pay attention to the words as and than for guidance.

1. This bowl of soup is _____ (hot) than the last bowl.
 2. She acts _____ (well) as Sandra Bullock.
 3. Jerry's pet is _____ (exotic) than Sue's.
 4. Your graduation gift is _____ (good) than mine.
 5. My job is _____ (serious) as yours.
 6. He was _____ (determined) than Joe to win the race.
 7. Charlie has grown _____ (tall) as his brother.
 8. She was _____ (shock) as I to see the test results.
 9. Johnny was _____ (truthful) than before in telling his story.
 10. I feel _____ (bad) today than yesterday.

Exercise 24: Using Comparisons: Than, As, From

Fill in the blank with the correct comparative word of than, as, or from.

1. A cat is much quicker _____ a mouse.
2. The dolphins swam as fast _____ our boat.
3. Jennifer was much more certain of the answer _____ Julie.
4. My twin cousin is indistinguishable _____ the other.
5. Unmanned rockets can now travel much further _____ the moon.
6. John's speech was much different _____ mine.
7. The ball game continued much longer _____ expected.
8. Our cheerleaders were as good _____ theirs.
9. Nathan was stronger _____ Michael, so he won the match.
10. I think crumpets are much tastier _____ crepes.

15. COMMANDS

A command is an order given to another person. It can be preceded by please in order to make it more polite. The simple form of the verb is used and you is the understood subject.

Make your bed.

Please open the door for me.

Clean your room.

Be quiet.

Negative Commands

A negative command adds the word don't before the simple verb.

Don't get in my way.

Please don't do that again.

Don't miss the bus.

Don't put that there.

Indirect Commands

Indirect commands will normally use the verbs ask, tell, order, or say. They are followed by the infinitive of the verb (to + verb).

The judge ordered him to pay what he owed.

The professor asked the class to open their books.

Please tell Paul to return the library book.

He told me to wait in the hall.

Negative Indirect Commands

Add the word not before the infinitive verb to make an indirect command negative.

I told Rachel not to walk that way to school.

Abigail ordered Jerry not to pull her hair.

Please ask the kids not to make so much noise.

Sue asked the hairdresser not to shorten her hair length.

16. NEGATION – PART I - USING NOT

In order to make a sentence negative, use the word not after the auxiliary verb, or verb be.

NOTE: When adding not to the auxiliary can, the word is written as one word – cannot.

Robert is happy.

Robert is not happy.

George has done his homework.

George has not done his homework.

Stephanie has arrived.

Stephanie has not arrived.

You can climb the wall.

You cannot climb the wall.

If there is no auxiliary or be verb then add the correct form of do (do, does, did) and place the word not after that.

Examples of sentences which do not contain an auxiliary verb and must be used with do, does, or did.

Mark likes to swim.

Mark does not like to swim.

Stacy went to the dentist.

Stacy did not go to the dentist.

We want to travel to Europe.

We do not want to travel to Europe.

None / No

None is used with either a plural count or non-count noun. It CANNOT be used with a single count noun. The verb form will depend on the noun used.

None of the girls have played soccer before.

plural count noun = girls

None of the water has leaked into the basement.

Non-count noun = water

No can be used with all nouns. The verb form will depend on the noun used.

No boy is going to date my daughter.

Single count noun = boy

No cars are completely energy efficient.

Plural count noun = cars

No water is safe to drink from that county.

Non-count noun = water

Some / Any

Some is used before the complement in a positive/affirmative sentence, while any is used before the complement in a negative sentence.

I want some coffee.

I don't want any coffee.

Daniel has some pizza.

Daniel doesn't have any pizza.

Debby had some homework.

Debby didn't have any homework.

It is also possible to make a sentence negative by adding the word no before the complement noun. When this occurs, the verb CANNOT be negative (see Double Negatives next).

Daniel has no pizza.

Debby has no homework.

Either / Neither

Either is used as an indication of selection between two choices, while neither is used to indicate that none of the two choices is viable.

NOTE: When either or neither are used as the subject, they always use a singular verb.

Either of the jackets is a good choice for the banquet.

Neither of the cars is fast enough to win the race.

Also, when indicating the two choices individually, either uses the word or between choices while neither uses the word nor between choices.

Either Sue or Helen has your keys.

Neither Sue nor Helen has your keys.

17. DOUBLE NEGATIVES

In English, double negatives must be avoided. It is incorrect to use two negatives in the same sentence clause.

Study the examples below:

INCORRECT

I don't have no money.
We didn't want no ice.
He doesn't like nobody.
She can't never come out.

CORRECT

I don't have any money.
We didn't want any ice.
He doesn't like anybody.
She can't ever come out.

OR

I have no money.
We wanted no ice.
He likes nobody.
She can't come out.

Exercise 25: Avoiding Double Negatives

Correct the following sentences, all of which contain double negatives.

Example: Jimmy doesn't have no manners. Jimmy doesn't have any manners.

1. Kathy didn't do nothing.
2. There isn't no milk in the refrigerator.
3. I can't never understand him.
4. We couldn't see nothing but people at the concert.
5. They didn't trust nobody.

48. Hurling is a team sport created by the ancient Gaelic people who is played by using sticks and a ball to score a goal.
- a) who is played by using sticks and a ball to score a goal
 - b) that is played by using sticks and a ball to score a goal
 - c) which plays by the use of sticks and a ball to score a goal
 - d) that, using sticks and a ball, someone scores a goal
 - e) who scores a goal by the use of sticks and a ball
49. There are a group of kids in our neighborhood who like to get together on the weekends and help less fortunate children.
- a) There are a group of kids in our neighborhood who like to get together on the weekends and help
 - b) Getting together on the weekends are a group of kids which like helping
 - c) A group of kids on the weekend getting together in our neighborhood like the helping of
 - d) There is a group of kids in our neighborhood who like to get together on the weekends and help
 - e) In our neighborhood, there is a group of kids who likes to get together on the weekends and helping
50. I arrived at the event early so that I could set close to the celebrities and have a vantage point to sit up my camera to take good photos.
- a) could set close to the celebrities and have a vantage point to sit up my camera to take
 - b) had a good seat to set close to the celebrities and have a vantage point to set up my camera to take
 - c) could sit close to the celebrities and have a vantage point of setting up my camera of taking
 - d) should be able to sit close to the celebrities for having a vantage point to set up my camera in taking
 - e) could sit close to the celebrities and have a vantage point to set up my camera to take

PART II: INTERMEDIATE

18. COORDINATING CONJUNCTIONS: PART II

Coordinating conjunctions are words which link, or coordinate, two or more similar words, phrases, or clauses together into one fluid idea. Words that are considered coordinating conjunctions are and, but, or and nor.

Correlative (Paired) Conjunctions

Correlative conjunctions (also called paired conjunctions) are as follows: both...and; not only...but also; either...or; neither...nor.

When using the both...and conjunctions with two subjects, the plural form of the verb is used because you are speaking of the two subjects together.

Both my shirt and my pants are brand new.

When two subjects are connected by not only...but also; either...or, or neither...nor, the subject which is closer to the verb determines whether the verb is singular or plural.

Not only Susie but also her friend is coming to dinner.

Not only Susie but also her friends are coming to dinner.

Neither Susie nor her friend is coming to dinner.

Examples of correlative conjunctions that occur after the subject:

The trip will require both a visa and tickets.

Yesterday, it not only rained but also snowed.

The soup in the cafeteria is either too hot or too cold.

The band played neither harmoniously nor rhythmically.

Combining Independent Clauses with Coordinating Conjunctions

Two or more independent clauses (ie. complete sentences) can be combined by using a coordinating conjunction. If the combined sentences are long, a comma is normally used before the conjunction. However, the comma is usually omitted if the combined sentence is short. (See more about comma usage in the punctuation section.)

The sun was shining. The birds were singing.

The sun was shining and the birds were singing.

Sometimes, in informal writing, a conjunction can begin a sentence.

The sun was shining. And the birds were singing.

The conjunctions so (meaning “therefore”, “as a result of”), for (meaning “because”) and yet (meaning “but”, “nevertheless”) are also used to connect independent clauses. A comma is almost always used before these words when they are used as coordinating conjunctions.

She was angry, so she yelled at her brother.

Brad was excited, for he had won the contest.

The basketball player was tall, yet quick.

However, take care in identifying these words as they have other meanings in other structures.

So is also used in comparisons (She is not so old as her sister.), or as an adjective that means “very” (Angela is so sweet!).

For is also used as a preposition (She waited for her friend.).

Yet is also used as an adverb, meaning “up to this time” (Her friend hasn’t arrived yet.).

Subordinating Conjunctions (Which Connect Adverb Clauses)

Subordinating conjunctions are words that are used to introduce adverb clauses. Adverb clauses provide more information to the initial verb action relative to time, cause and effect, contrast, direct contrast, or condition. In the below sentence, because he was sleepy is the cause of John going to bed.

John went to bed because he was sleepy.

An adverb clause will often begin a sentence. When this occurs, a comma is used to separate it from the main clause. (See more about comma use in the punctuation section.)

Because he was sleepy, John went to bed.

Adverb clauses are dependent clauses and cannot stand alone as a complete sentence.

INCORRECT: John went to bed. Because he was sleepy.

Below is a list of subordinating conjunctions used to introduce adverb clauses.

Time
after	as	once	every time (that) before	as soon as	as/so long as	the first time (that) when	since	whenever	the last time (that) while	until	by the time (that)	the next time (that)

19. RELATIVE CLAUSES

A relative clause is used to combine two separate sentences into one complete sentence. Any sentence that utilizes a relative clause can be separated into two complete sentences as the relative pronoun combines the two ideas together by replacing a duplicate noun phrase.

The ancient stone contains strange symbols. The symbols are from a forgotten language.

The ancient stone contains strange symbols that are from a forgotten language.

Relative Pronouns

Relative pronouns that are used in relative clauses to replace duplicate noun phrases are listed below.

Pronoun	Use in English
That	Things
Which	Things
Who	People
Whom	People
Whose	Usually people

Dr. Won is the teacher. Dr. Won will accompany us.

ACCEPTABLE INFORMAL: Dr. Won is the teacher that (or who) will accompany us.

ACCEPTABLE FORMAL: Dr. Won is the teacher who will accompany us.

NOTE: The relative pronoun which is NEVER used with people in English.

UNACCEPTABLE: Dr. Won is the teacher which will accompany us.

A regular pronoun CANNOT be used with a relative pronoun.

INCORRECT: This is the dress that I will wear it at the dance.

CORRECT: This is the dress that I will wear at the dance.

Restrictive and Nonrestrictive Clauses

A relative clause is considered to be either restrictive or nonrestrictive. A restrictive clause cannot be omitted from the sentence without disrupting the meaning. A nonrestrictive clause is one that contains additional information and can be removed without disrupting the original meaning of the sentence.

A nonrestrictive clause is separated from the original sentence by commas and a restrictive clause is not. (See more information about the use of commas in the punctuation section.) The relative pronouns who, whom, whose and which can be used in either restrictive or nonrestrictive clauses. However, that can ONLY be used in restrictive clauses.

Restrictive Clause:

The man who lives in the old, spooky house is always walking around at night.

If the relative clause “who lives in the old, spooky house” is removed, it would change the meaning of the sentence because we are only talking about the man who lives in that particular house, not just any man.

The tomatoes that are ripe should be harvested today before they spoil.

The relative clause “that are ripe” cannot be removed because we are talking about particular tomatoes which need to be harvested, those that are ripe.

Examples of restrictive clauses:

The mechanic who is on duty will attend to your vehicle.

Spiders that are poisonous are being studied in class today.

The woman to whom I spoke was very rude.

Nonrestrictive Clause:

Dr. Thompson, who has received a prestigious science award, is my science teacher.

The relative clause can be removed from this sentence without changing the original meaning that “Dr. Thompson is my science teacher”. That he has received a prestigious science award is extra information that has been added.

The store’s entire furniture inventory, which consisted of rare antiques, was destroyed in the storm.

The relative clause “which consisted of rare antiques” can be removed without disrupting the main idea of the sentence which is that all the furniture was destroyed in the storm. The relative clause is added information which is not necessary to the main idea of the sentence.

Examples of nonrestrictive clauses:

Albert Einstein, who created the theory of relativity, was considered to be a genius.

All the lions in the zoo, which are large and ferocious, escaped into the surrounding area.

I comforted the lost boy, whom was shivering and cold, before the authorities arrived.

Adjective Clause Pronouns Used as the Subject

An adjective clause is added to an independent clause to modify the subject of the independent clause. However, the noun directly before the relative pronoun usually indicates whether the verb of the second clause is singular or plural, not the subject of the independent clause.

Examples:

- Regina is the reporter who writes for our school paper. (reporter = writes – singular)
 She is one of the writers who present quality material. (writers = present – plural)
- John is a person who likes to work hard. (person = likes – singular)
 He is one of our workers who like to excel. (workers = like – plural)

Exercise 26: Creating Relative Clauses

In each sentence below, combine the two individual sentences into one sentence using a relative clause. Indicate whether the relative clause is restrictive or nonrestrictive by placing an “R” or “NR” in the blank at the end of the sentence. NOTE: Be sure to add commas before and after a nonrestrictive relative clause.

Example: John runs very fast. John won the state sprinting title.

John, who won the state sprinting title, runs very fast. NR

1. The cat is in my yard again. The cat has a broken leg.

2. I am going to see the doctor. The doctor delivered me when I was born.

3. Jim Carey autographed my shirt. Jim Carey is the funniest man ever.

4. Once, I met a man. The man’s teeth were all gold.

5. The chain broke. The chain keeps the bear from escaping.

6. Dragons breathe columns of fire. Dragons fly through the night sky.

7. Free Willy was a cute movie. Free Willy was a story about freedom.

8. Chester came to my party. Chester was an amazing guitar player.

9. The baby was rushed to the hospital. The baby's arm was broken.

10. Jessica met a new friend. Jessica liked her friend very much.

20. GERUNDS AND INFINITIVES

A gerund is the “ing” form of a verb that is used as a noun in the subject or object (complement) position.

Fishing is fun.
subject verb

Here, the “ing” form of the verb to fish is the subject.

He enjoys fishing.
subject verb object

Here, the gerund fishing is the object (complement).

He's excited about fishing.
prep. object

Here, fishing is the object of the preposition.

An infinitive is the simple, base form of the verb preceded by to (to + verb) as in to fish.

Gerunds as Subjects

If a sentence begins with a gerund then the verb must be singular.

Telling a lie got him into a great deal of trouble.

Surfing is a popular sport along coastal areas.

Taking good photos is a good way to make extra money.

Eating during depressed periods makes her feel better.

Noun + Preposition Followed by a Gerund

Certain nouns, when followed by certain prepositions, are always followed by a gerund. Consider the following samples in the chart below.

choice of	intention of	possibility of excuse for	method for (of)	reason for

He was given the choice of staying after school or being expelled.

Stacey had no intention of doing her homework.

Walter has developed a special method of cleaning clothes.

There was absolutely no reason for skipping class.

Our class considered the possibility of getting out early.

Whenever a preposition is followed directly by a verb, the verb will be in gerund form.

Molly felt very sick after eating at the new restaurant.

Before leaving the house, Mark had to feed the animals.

Verbs Always Followed by a Gerund

Some verbs are always followed by a gerund. Following is a list of the most common.

admit	discuss	miss	resent appreciate	enjoy	postpone	resist
avoid	finish	practice	resume
consider	keep	quit	risk
delay	mention	recall (remember)	suggest
deny	mind	report

The thief has admitted stealing the jewelry from the store.

You should delay travelling until the weather clears up.

Did Jack mention picking up the dry cleaning after work?

I don't recall telling her that.

John suggested feeding the homeless on the weekends.

Adjective + Preposition Followed by a Gerund

The adjectives + prepositions in the box below are commonly followed by a gerund.

accustomed to	capable of	intent on	successful in afraid of	fond of	interested in	tired of

Darrell is accustomed to going to the gym each day after class.

Both of my sisters are afraid of being alone in the dark.

You are capable of playing guitar much better.

Maggie is quite fond of eating chocolate.

The climbing team was intent on reaching the top of the mountain.

They were interested in seeing the test results.

Susie was successful in finding her hidden friends.

My dad is tired of working such long hours.

Pronouns before a Gerund or Infinitive

Sometimes, the infinitive is used as a complement after certain verbs. An indirect object pronoun is required before the infinitive in these sentences.

subject + verb + complement form + pronoun noun + to + verb (infinitive) . . .

Verbs commonly followed by an infinitive which usually require an indirect object are listed in the chart below.

allow	expect	permit	remind ask	instruct	persuade	urge beg	invite	prepare	want
convince	order	promise

Jennifer begged them to take her to the movies too.

The teacher expected them to act differently.

Julie's mother prepared her to compete in the talent show.

Terry wanted her to go to the dance with him.

However, when a noun or pronoun precedes a gerund, it must be in the possessive form in formal English. Informal English usually does not use the possessive form before a gerund.

subject + verb + Possessive noun form
Possessive adjective + verb + ing (gerund) . . .

They resented his not telling the truth.

FORMAL

They resented him not telling the truth.

INFORMAL

Our neighbors complained about our playing loud music.

FORMAL

Our neighbors complained about us playing loud music.

INFORMAL

She couldn't understand his not wanting to dance with her.

FORMAL

She couldn't understand him not wanting to dance with her.

INFORMAL

The policeman didn't like Michael's arguing with him.

FORMAL

The policeman didn't like Michael arguing with him.

INFORMAL

We resented the man's telling us to leave the store.

FORMAL

We resented the man telling us to leave the store.

INFORMAL

Verbs Always Followed by an Infinitive

Some verbs are always followed by an infinitive. Following is a list of some of the most common.

agree to	desire to	hope to	seem to attempt to	expect to	intend to	strive to claim to	fail to	learn to	tend to decide to	forget to	pretend to	want to demand to	hesitate to	refuse to	wish to Jordan claims to be a relative of George Washington.

My parents expect to retire this year.

Don't hesitate to throw the ball next time!

My little brother pretends to fight dangerous dragons.

Mary strives to receive straight A's in school.

Adjectives Followed by an Infinitive

Following is a list of adjectives which can be immediately followed by an infinitive form of the verb.

amazed to	eager to	motivated to	sad to anxious to	fortunate to	pleased to	sorry to ashamed to	glad to	prepared to	strange to astonished to	happy to	proud to	surprised to certain to	hard to	ready to	(un) usual to dangerous to	hesitant to	relieved to	upset to delighted to	lucky to	reluctant to	willing to

George was anxious to begin the project.

Monica was glad to discover she had passed the exam.

The children were hesitant to enter the haunted house.

Betty's parents were relieved to learn that she wasn't hurt in the accident.

I am willing to help with feeding the poor on the weekends.

NOTE: Able means the same as capable in most cases. However, able is always followed by an infinitive while capable is followed by of + gerund.

Shelly is able to play the violin much better than Andy.

Shelly is capable of playing the violin much better than Andy.

Exercise 27: Using Gerunds and Infinitives

Correctly fill in the blanks in the following sentences with either the gerund or infinitive form of the verb in parentheses.

1. She isn't accustomed to (drink) _____ water with her meals.
2. I'm prepared (answer) _____ any question that might be required during my interview.
3. John was (hope) _____ to receive a scholarship for his efforts.
4. They agreed (cooperate) _____ with the investigation.
5. Kelly opened the window (let) _____ in some fresh air.
6. (Live) _____ in a large city can be stressful.
7. I'll help you as soon as I finish (mow) _____ the lawn.
8. Did you remember (deliver) _____ the package before going to work?
9. Ivan took a deep breath (relax) _____ himself before taking the stage.
10. The policeman couldn't tolerate his (run) _____ away.

21. CAUSATIVE VERBS

Causative verbs are used to indicate that one person causes another person to do something for them. The true causative verbs are: have, get and make. NOTE: Causative verbs are normally used with people, although things can sometimes be “made to do something” also.

Have / Get

The clause following have or get can be either active or passive. Study the following examples. (See Passive Voice chapter for more information on passive voice.)

ACTIVE Have	subject + have + complement + verb in simple form . . .
-----------------------	--

I had my brother feed the dog all week. (My brother fed the dog.)

ACTIVE Get	subject + get + complement + verb in infinitive . . .
----------------------	--

I got my brother to feed the dog all week. (My brother fed the dog.)

PASSIVE Have/ Get	subject + have get + complement + verb in past participle . . .
-----------------------------	--

I had the dog fed.
OR (The dog was fed by somebody.)
I got the dog fed

Examples of active causative clauses:

Gary is getting his girlfriend to pick up the dry cleaning.
The president had the reporters wait outside the conference room.
Martha is having her friend help with her assignment.
The doctor got his patient to take the bitter medicine.

Examples of passive causative clauses:

Robert has his stories published each month.
My sister had her dress altered for the wedding by my aunt.
I can't believe she is getting her hair colored like mine!
My son is having his eyes tested this week.
We all had our heads shaved before the big game.

Make

The causative verb make can only be followed by a clause in the active voice. Make is a much stronger command than have or get and means to force someone to do something.

subject + make + complement + verb in simple form . . .

The judge made me give him my driver's license.

NOTE: Even though make means the same as force, if force is used then the infinitive of the verb is used.

subject + force + complement + verb in infinitive form . . .

The judge forced me to give him my driver's license.

Examples of sentences using the causative verb make:

My boss makes me finish the daily report each day before I go home.

I made my little sister give me half of her candy.

Our teacher is making us bring our homework to him tomorrow.

Ralph had made us promise not to tell what he did before he entered the forbidden zone.

Exercise 28: Using Causative Verbs

Fill in the blank with the correct form of the verb in parentheses in the following sentences.

1. Johnny's mom made him _____ (clean) his room.
2. I am having the seamstress _____ (alter) my dress.
3. My parents got me _____ (visit) my aunt before leaving town.
4. Our boss let us _____ (leave) the meeting early.
5. We should help Jennifer _____ (study) for her final exam.
6. They will have to get the judge _____ (sign) the form before they can proceed.
7. The Johnson's always have us _____ (feed) their dog for them during their summer vacation.
8. Ralph is getting Julia _____ (write) his essay for him.
9. The dog made the cat _____ (climb) the tree quickly.
10. I got the mechanic _____ (fix) my car before he went to lunch.

Other examples of affirmative agreement sentences:

Jeff will be in Toronto and Elaine will too.

Jeff will be in Toronto and so will Elaine.

My sister was valedictorian of her class and my brother was too.

My sister was valedictorian of her class and so was my brother.

Their parents are going to the conference and ours are too.

Their parents are going to the conference and so are ours.

Exercise 29: Using Affirmative Agreement

Fill in the blanks of the simple statements below with the correct form of the appropriate verb.

1. Randall wants to go to Europe and I _____ too.
2. Their parents are attending the benefit dinner and so _____ mine.
3. My English teacher likes to go dancing and so _____ I.
4. Ellen needs to go to the dentist and her husband _____ too.
5. I need to finish my homework and you _____ too.
6. My car should have its tires replaced and so _____ yours.
7. Sally wrote her congressman and Robert _____ too.
8. They like to play board games and so _____ we.
9. George is very tall and so _____ his sister.
10. Mary is flying to France today and Mark _____ too.

23. NEGATION – PART II

Hardly, Barely, Rarely, Seldom, Etc.

Remember that it is incorrect to use two negatives together in English grammar. This is called a double negative and is unacceptable. The words in the chart below have negative meaning therefore they must be used with a positive verb.

INCORRECT

There is hardly no bread left.
 She doesn't seldom sleep well.

CORRECT

There is hardly any bread left.
 She seldom sleeps well.

hardly barely	means almost nothing , or almost not at all scarcely rarely seldom	means almost never hardly ever

Martha hardly slept last night because of all the construction noise.

The kids barely arrived to the movie on time.

Anna scarcely thinks about her old boyfriend.

Our children rarely come to visit us these days.

Scott seldom gets headaches since taking the new medicine.

We hardly ever go bowling in the summer.

24. MODAL AUXILIARY VERBS

Modal auxiliary verbs and verb phrases are used to indicate that something is necessary, advisable, permissible, possible, or probable. The following chart shows the modal verbs and verb phrases in their present/future and past uses.

Auxiliary	Uses	Present/Future	Past
will	(1) 100% certainty (2) willingness (3) polite request	Joe will arrive at 3:00 I will pay for lunch Will you please come too?
would	(1) desire (2) polite request (3) repeated past action	I would like to come too Would you like to come too? When I worked there, I would get free meals	I would have gone, but I was busy
may	(1) polite request (2) formal permission (3) uncertainty	May I borrow ten dollars? You may leave class early Joe may be at the office	Joe may have been at the office
might	(1) uncertainty (2) polite request (uncommon)	Joe might be at the office Might I borrow ten dollars?	Joe might have been at the office
can	(1) permissible (2) polite request (3) possibility	I can carry that for you Can you carry this for me? I can win this game
could	(1) conditional (2) polite request	I could carry that for you if you'd like Could you carry this for me?	I could have won the game if I'd have trained harder
shall	(same as will, only formal and uncommonly used)	Joe shall arrive at 3:00 I shall pay for lunch
should	(1) advisability (2) uncertainty/ expectation	I should study for the test I should do well on the test	I should have studied for the test I should have done well on the test
ought to	(1) advisability (2) uncertainty/ expectation	I ought to study tonight I ought to do well on the test	I ought to have studied tonight, but I didn't I ought to have done well on the test
had better	(1) advisability with threat or bad result	You had better tell the truth, or you will get into trouble

NOTE: Most modals are followed by the simple form of the verb (without "to"). Ought is an exception (see above), as well as some modal verb phrases. The modals above should never be followed directly by a verb + ing, verb + s, past tense verb, or an infinitive (except for ought).

Negation of Modals

In order to make a modal sentence negative, the particle not is added after the modal.

I would like to go to Europe.
You should play with that toy.

I would not like to go to Europe.
You should not play with that toy.

Forming Questions with Modals

The modal begins a sentence when forming questions from sentences with modals.

Would you like to go to Europe?
Should you play with that toy?

Exercise 30: Using Modals

Fill in the correct form of the modal to complete the sentences. NOTE: Some sentences can use more than one modal. See the Answers to Exercises section for other alternatives.

1. If I finish this large pot of stew before lunchtime, I _____ take it to the homeless shelter.
2. Had Jonathon not fallen down the stairs, he _____ be playing in the game tonight.
3. You _____ get that cough checked if you don't want to end up in the hospital.
4. Mike _____ have won the competition if he had studied harder.
5. Sally _____ be able to go with us if she finishes her errands.
6. _____ you please tell me where the museum is located?
7. If he grows any bigger, he _____ fit into any of his clothes.
8. You _____ do that if you don't want to get into trouble.

Conditional Sentences

Conditional sentences include the modals will, would, can and could, usually with the word if. There are two types of conditional sentences: the real, which are based on factual and habitual situations, and the unreal, which are based on untrue or hypothetical situations.

The real conditional is used when an action or situation is expressed which normally will occur if the circumstances in the main clause are met. The real conditional is sometimes referred to as the “future possible” because it refers to a possible future outcome.

Situation: I am not planning on doing anything this weekend. Someone asks me if I want to go to the concert with them. I say:

I will go to the concert if it is possible.

The sentence is true because: I will go to the concert unless it is impossible.

We can have a party if my dad leaves.

The sentence is true because: We will have a party unless my dad is here.

The unreal conditional conveys a situation that would take place, or would have taken place, if the circumstances were, or had been, different. It can refer to past, present, or future situations.

Situation: It is impossible for me to go, but I want to go. I say:

I would go to the concert if it were possible.

This sentence is untrue because: I know that I cannot go to the concert.

John could buy that car if he had the money.

This sentence is untrue because: John doesn't have the money and cannot buy the car.

The if clause can also come at the beginning of the sentence without changing the meaning. However, when the if clause begins the sentence, a comma is used to separate it from the main clause.

I could go to the ball game if I didn't have to work.

OR

If I didn't have to work, I could go to the ball game.

The word if is usually not followed directly by the modal.

if + subject + conjugated verb . . . + modal . . .

subject + modal . . . + if . . . + conjugated verb . . .

NOTE: In the unreal condition, the past tense form of the verb be is always were. It can NEVER be was.

If I were
If you were	If we were
If he were	If you were
If she were	If they were
If it were

If the verb in the unreal conditional sentence is negative, the meaning is actually positive. If the verb is positive, the meaning is actually negative.

If he were taller, he could play professional basketball.
 (He's not tall.) (He cannot play professional basketball.)

I could record an album, if I were a better singer,
 (I cannot record an album.) (I am not a better singer.)

BUT

If the taxi driver hadn't been speeding, he wouldn't have been in an accident.
 (The taxi driver was speeding.) (He was in an accident.)

They would have received tickets if they hadn't been late.
 (They didn't receive tickets.) (They were late.)

Real Conditions (Possibly True)

Following are the formulas for conditional sentences which have the possibility of being true.

Remember: The formula can be reversed, placing the if clause in the middle of the sentence.

Also, when placing the if clause first, a comma is used after it.

Future
if + subject + simple present tense +	will can may must + verb in simple form

If I raise enough money, I will start my own business.

Our team will win if they play well.

Habitual
if + subject + simple present tense. . . + simple present tense. . .

NOTE: A modal is not used in the habitual conditional form of a sentence.

If the traffic is heavy, I am late for work.

Margaret sings in the church choir if she has free time.

Command
if + subject + simple present tense. . . + command (simple verb form)

If you go to the store after work, please buy bread.

Contact me if we win the project bid.

Unreal Conditions (Not True)

Following are the formulas for conditional sentences which are not true.

Remember: Unreal conditionals use the opposite verb tense than what is being relayed.

Present or Future
if + subject + simple past tense +	would could might + verb in simple form

If John knew math better, he could help you with your homework.
 (John doesn't know math better) (He can't help you with your homework.)

I would drive you to town if I had a car.
 (I won't drive you to town.) (I don't have a car.)

If you didn't have to work, we could go to the party.
 (You have to work.) (We cannot go to the party.)

Past
if + subject + past perfect +	would could might + have + verb in past participle

If she had taken that bus, she would have been in the accident.
 (She didn't take that bus.) (She wasn't in the accident.)

They might have arrived on time if they hadn't taken that bus.
 (They didn't arrive on time.) (They took that bus.)

If Rob hadn't gone to the party, he wouldn't have lost his job.
 (Rob went to the party.) (He lost his job.)

The unreal condition can also be expressed without using if. In this situation, the auxiliary verb had is placed before the subject instead of after it. This clause normally comes first in the sentence.

Past
Had + subject + past perfect +	would could might + have + verb in past participle

Had he heard the news sooner, he would have prepared a better speech.

9. Mary can go swimming if she _____ (have) extra time.
10. I would help you with the equation if I _____ (know) more about physics.

Whether / If

Basically, the difference between the words whether and if is that whether indicates a choice between two possibilities, whereas if is based on a condition of something happening or not.

Sometimes, whether or if can be used interchangeably. In the following sentences, both indicate that Alex may or may not call Shelly tonight.

Shelly didn't know whether Alex would call her tonight.
Shelly didn't know if Alex would call her tonight.

However, if the sentence gives two distinct possibilities then whether should be used.

Shelly didn't know whether Alex would call her tonight or tomorrow night.

Using the word if in the above sentence would change the meaning.

Example:

Shelly didn't know if Alex would call her tonight or tomorrow night.

Now this sentence indicates that Alex may call Shelly tonight, tomorrow night, or not at all. Therefore, always use whether when two clear choices are given and use if for conditional sentences.

Exercise 32: Using Because /Because Of

Fill in the blank with the appropriate form of because or because of.

Purpose and Result (So That)

Clauses which show purpose are followed by the conjunction so that. A result clause containing a subject and a verb then follows the conjunction. The result clause must occur after the main clause in relation to time.

subject + verb + so that + subject + verb

NOTE: The word that is often left out of these types of sentences in spoken English. However, it should always be included in formal written English.

PART III: ADVANCED

26. MODAL AUXILIARY VERBS – PART II

Must

The modal must is used to indicate total obligation. Stronger than the word should, which offers the person some choice, must carries with it the idea that the person has no choice.

You must disarm the security system before entering the house.

Sherry must call and cancel her appointment before leaving on vacation today.

The game warden must tranquilize the bear in order to relocate it.

When applying for this job, you must take a series of tests.

Must is also used to indicate a logical conclusion. Even though the situation isn't completely verifiable, a determined outcome is assumed based on the available facts.

Alice isn't answering her phone. She must not be home.

(We assume that Alice isn't home because she isn't answering her phone.)

I can't find my blue sweater. It must be in the laundry.

(I assume that my blue sweater is in the laundry because I can't find it.)

Have To

The phrase have to means the same as must (total obligation), therefore it is often considered to be a modal.

Greg has to go to school today if he wants to go on the field trip.

Our star quarterback has to play in the game tonight if we expect to win.

However, had to can be used to indicate a past obligation, but must CANNOT be used for a past obligation.

Greg had to go to school yesterday if he wanted to go on the field trip.

Our star quarterback had to play in the game last night for us to win.

Used To

The modal phrase used to has two grammar rules. Study the following rules for difference in usage and meaning. With the first rule, used to has the same meaning as would. NOTE: This phrase can never be expressed as use to. It must always be used to.

subject + used to + verb in simple form. . .

Margaret used to always take off her shoes when she was a child.
(This represents a past habit.)

This second rule uses a form of the verb be or get in order to show that someone either is accustomed to something, or became accustomed to something.

subject + be get + used to + verb + ing

I am used to taking a shower every morning before work.
(I am accustomed to taking a shower every morning before work.)

I got used to taking a shower every morning before work.
(I became accustomed to taking a shower every morning before work.)

Exercise 34: Using Used To

Based on the formulas above, complete the following sentences with either the simple or ing form of the verb in parentheses.

1. Eric was used to _____ (go) to the movies every Friday night.
2. Mary and Phillip used to _____ (date) back in high school.
3. When I had extra time and money, I used to _____ (travel) a lot.
4. I got used to _____ (eat) llama when I lived in South America.
5. My parents are used to _____ (fly) to Paris for their anniversary.
6. William used to _____ (be) a faster runner than his brother.
7. The actors got used to _____ (rehearse) long hours for that production.
8. Do you ever get used to _____ (perform) in front of an audience?
9. Jessica used to _____ (visit) her grandmother every afternoon when she was sick.
10. Jonathon isn't used to _____ (sleep) alone so he still sleeps with his parents.

Would Like

The expression would like is used when inviting someone to do something. It means the same as want.

subject + would like + infinitive (to + verb) . . .

Would you like to have lunch with me?

Susie would like to date Jason.

I would like to see the new James Bond movie.

Jack would like to go to Harvard University.

Would John like to come with us?

Would Rather

The phrase would rather has the same meaning as prefer. However, would rather must always be followed by a verb, whereas prefer may or may not be followed by a verb. Also, when two things are being compared, would rather is followed by than while prefer is followed by to.

Beth would rather study at the library than go to parties.

Beth prefers studying at the library to going to parties.

OR

Beth prefers studying to partying.

Several rules apply to would rather, depending on the form of the sentence. Study the following rules and examples.

Present Tense
subject + would rather + verb in simple form. . .

Elizabeth would rather go swimming than camping.

Past Tense
subject + would rather + have + verb in past participle (present perfect tense)

Elizabeth would rather have gone swimming than camping.

Would rather that is followed by the simple form of the verb when it has a subjunctive meaning, or by the past tense form of the verb when the meaning of the sentence is contrary to fact (as discussed under Conditional Sentences).

Present Subjunctive

subject + would rather that + subject + verb in simple form. . .

She would rather that the plane leave early in the morning.
My parents would rather that I drive slowly.

Present Contrary to Fact subject + would rather that + subject + verb in simple past tense. . .

Debby would rather that her boyfriend spent Friday nights with her.
(Debby's boyfriend does not spend Friday nights with her.)

We would rather that our play was successful.
(Our play is not successful.)

The following rule is used when the sentence with would rather that contains two subjects and the time is past tense. When this occurs, the meaning is always contrary to fact.

Past Contrary to Fact subject + would rather that + subject + verb in past perfect. . .

Doug would rather that his dad had bought him the red car.
(Doug's dad did not buy him the red car.)

In order to make a sentence negative which has one subject and is in present subjunctive form, simply add not before the verb.

Eric would rather not go to the conference tomorrow.
Eric would rather not have gone to the conference yesterday.
Eric would rather that you not go with him to the conference tomorrow.
Eric would rather that you not had gone to the conference with him yesterday.

For the present contrary to fact sentences, use didn't + verb in simple form. For the past contrary to fact sentences, use hadn't + verb in past participle.

Sally would rather that her cousin didn't wear the same clothes as her.
(Her cousin does wear the same clothes as Sally.)

Robert would rather that Jennifer hadn't told his secret.
(She did tell his secret.)

Exercise 35: Using Would Rather

Complete the sentences with the correct form of the verb in parentheses in the following sentences.

1. Debby would rather _____ (go) to the movies with her friends tonight.
2. Ralph would rather _____ (go) to the ball game yesterday.
3. Our teacher would rather that we _____ (study) for the exam than go to the pep rally.

6. I would rather _____ (play) soccer than volleyball.
7. Mark's parents would rather that he _____ (go; negative) to that school last semester.
8. Mary would rather they _____ (serve) seafood than pizza at the convention last night.
9. Bill would rather _____ (take) his exam tomorrow than today.
10. John's sister would rather that he _____ (embarrass; negative) her in front of her friends all the time.

Hope / Wish

These two verbs are similar in meaning, but are different in their grammatical usage. The verb hope indicates that something possibly happened or will possibly happen. The verb wish indicates that something definitely did not happen or definitely will not happen. Also, the verb hope can be followed by any verb tense, while the verb wish must NEVER be followed by a present tense verb or auxiliary verb. Study the following sentences.

I hope that I will arrive on time.
 (I don't know if I will arrive on time.)

I wish that I could arrive on time.
 (I am not going to arrive on time.)

We hope that no one died in the storm.
 (We don't know if anyone died in the storm.)

We wish that no one had died in the storm.
 (Someone did die in the storm.)

Keep in mind that wish is very similar to a contrary to fact or unreal condition.

Present unreal condition and wish:

If I were famous, I would help the poor.

I wish I were famous.

(In both sentences, I am not famous.)

Past unreal condition and wish:

If they had arrived earlier, they would have gone with us.

I wish they had arrived earlier.

(In both sentences, they didn't arrive early.)

Study the following formulas for using wish in past, present and future conditions.

NOTE: The word that can be added or omitted. The sentence is correct either way.

Past Wish
subject + wish + (that) + past perfect could have + verb in past participle

I wish that I had eaten earlier.
 (I didn't eat earlier.)

George wishes that he could have played in the championship game.
 (He couldn't play in the game.)

We wish that we had had more opportunities to advance in the competition.
 (We didn't have more opportunities.)

Present Wish
subject + wish + (that) + subject + simple past tense. . .

John wishes that he had the money to go on the trip.
(He doesn't have the money.)

I wish that I were qualified enough to be an astronaut.
(I am not qualified enough.)

We wish that we didn't have to take the exam today.
(We have to take the exam.)

Future Wish
subject + wish + (that) + subject + could + verb would + verb were + verb

I wish that you could go to Italy with me this summer.
(You can't go to Italy this summer.)

Mike wishes that his sister would write his essay for him.
(She won't write his essay for him.)

The farmer wishes that his crops were producing more.
(They are not producing more.)

Exercise 36: Using Wish / Hope

Fill in the blank with the correct form of the verb in parentheses in the following sentences.
Some sentences could have more than one option.

- Mary wishes that John _____ (go) with her to the prom next weekend.
- I hope that my plane _____ (crash; negative)!
- The defeated warriors wish they _____ (won) the battle.
- We wish that John _____ (play) in the championship game last night.
- Darren hopes that his grandparents _____ (come) to his graduation.
- Natalie wishes that she _____ (have) enough time to visit her cousin.
- The government wishes that it _____ (do) more to help the economy.
- I wish that Freddie _____ (arrive) on time.
- They hope that the movie _____ (start; negative) yet.
- The boy wishes that his sister _____ (feel) better tomorrow.

27. MODAL + PRESENT PERFECT (PERFECTIVE)

The modal – present perfect (perfective) is usually used to indicate past time.

NOTE: Remember that a modal is always followed by the simple form of the verb. Example: have can never be has or had.

modal + have + verb in past participle. . .

Could / May / Might + Present Perfect (Perfective)

These modals indicate a past possibility. They can also mean a possibility in the present.

Our team could have won the game.
 Alex may have passed the test, but he's not sure.
 My parents might have stopped at the grocery store.

Should + Present Perfect (Perfective)

The modal should is used to indicate an obligation that was supposed to have occurred in the past, but didn't.

The bus should have arrived by now.
 (It hasn't arrived.)
 I shouldn't have eaten so much for dinner.
 (I did eat too much.)

Jeff should have finished his report for class today.
 (He didn't finish his report.)

NOTE: The expression was/were supposed to + verb in simple form is similar in meaning to this.

Jeff was supposed to finish his report for class today.
 (He didn't finish his report.)

They were supposed to stop at the doctor's office before coming home.
 (They didn't stop at the doctor's office.)

Must + Past Perfect (Perfective)

The modal must is not used to indicate a past obligation. Must + past perfect (perfective) is used only to indicate a logical conclusion in the past.

Jack's car is in the driveway.	He must have stayed home today. (He probably stayed home.)
Alex is still in bed.	She must have had a good time at the party. (She probably had a good time.)
They haven't arrived yet.	They must have got caught in traffic. (They probably got caught in traffic.)

Exercise 37: Using Should / Must

Correctly fill in the blank with should + past perfect, or must + past perfect in the following sentences.

1. The girls were forbidden to reenter the cinema. They _____ (keep) their ticket stubs.
2. Eric began vomiting in class. He _____ (eat) something bad for lunch.
3. Julie was crying in the hallway. Her boyfriend _____ (say) something to hurt her.
4. My little brother was thrown from the horse. I _____ (allow; negative) him to ride it.
5. It was very late. We _____ (leave) much earlier.
6. The teacher is very angry. His class _____ (do) something wrong.
7. Ralph failed his English exam. He _____ (pay) more attention in class.
8. My boss looks very upset. He _____ (have) a bad meeting.
9. Mary won't talk to Mike. He _____ (say; negative) those bad things to her.
10. Henry's cat hasn't returned. He _____ (let) it out of the house.

ACTIVE: Massachusetts Bay Colony founded Harvard University in 1636.
actor action object

PASSIVE: Harvard University was founded in 1636.
object be past participle

In this example, the actor is unknown in the passive voice.

ACTIVE: Our company sells millions of computer chips each year.
actor action object

PASSIVE: Millions of computer chips are sold by our company each year.
object be past participle actor

In this example, the actor is less important and placed at the end of the sentence, separated with the preposition by in the passive voice.

Present Progressive or Past Progressive
am
is
are	+ being + verb in past participle
was
were

ACTIVE: Mr. Stanford is painting our house in the morning.

PASSIVE: Our house is being painted in the morning.

OR Our house is being painted by Mr. Stanford in the morning.

ACTIVE: The scientist was researching electron atoms.

PASSIVE: Electron atoms were being researched.

OR Electron atoms were being researched by the scientist.

NOTE: Notice that the verb changes from a singular subject in the active (the scientist was researching) to a plural object in the passive (electron atoms were being researched).

Present Perfect
has have + been + verb in past participle had

ACTIVE: The pizza man has delivered our pizza on time.

PASSIVE: Our pizza has been delivered on time.

OR Our pizza has been delivered by the pizza man on time.

ACTIVE: The owner had hired many people before the economy collapsed.

PASSIVE: Many people had been hired before the economy collapsed.

OR Many people had been hired by the owner before the economy collapsed.

Modals
modal + be + verb in past participle

ACTIVE: The chef should prepare the meal.

PASSIVE: The meal should be prepared.

OR The meal should be prepared by the chef.

Modal + Perfect Tense
modal + have + been + verb in past participle

ACTIVE: Margaret should have billed the patients yesterday.

PASSIVE: The patients should have been billed yesterday.

OR The patients should have been billed by Margaret yesterday.

Exercise 38: Passive Voice

Change the following sentences from active to passive voice.

1. The doctor treats patients every day.
2. Allen is treating the visitors to lunch.
3. The teacher should score the tests today.
4. Somebody left a baby at the church doors.
5. Teresa has chosen ten team members to help with the campaign.
6. The driver was delivering a package when the accident occurred.
7. The judge has delivered the verdict.
8. The staff has finished the tasks for the day.
9. Renaldo will have deciphered the code by the weekend.
10. My parents should have received the tickets yesterday.

29. OTHER USES OF THAT

Optional That

The word that can be used in several ways besides introducing relative clauses. Sometimes, it is used as a conjunction. When that is used as a conjunction, it is can be either optional or obligatory, depending on the sentence.

The word that is usually optional when it comes after the following verbs.

say	tell	think	believe
-----	------	-------	---------

Erica said that she was coming over after work.

OR

Erica said she was coming over after work.

Michael thought that the new girl was pretty.

OR

Michael thought the new girl was pretty.

Obligatory That

The word that is usually obligatory after the following verbs when introducing another clause.

mention	declare	report	state
---------	---------	--------	-------

The president stated that he would introduce new legislation before recess.

Alice mentioned that she was going to the prom with Bob.

The newspaper reported that the strike was ending today.

That with Noun Phrase Clauses

Often, when that introduces a noun clause which also contains a verb, the sentence can be reversed.

It is a fact that the earth revolves around the sun.

OR

That the earth revolves around the sun is a fact.

It was noted that the witness wasn't quite sure.

OR

That the witness wasn't quite sure was noted.

It was noticed by several people that an explosion occurred before the fire.

OR

That an explosion occurred before the fire was noticed by several people.

30. ENOUGH WITH NOUNS, ADJECTIVES AND AVERBS

The modifier enough is used before nouns and after adjectives and adverbs.

enough + noun

Examples of enough preceding a noun:

There isn't enough gas in the car to make the entire trip.

Ronny has enough strength to lift twice his weight.

The girls don't have enough time to go to the mall after the movie.

Do you have enough money to eat at the restaurant later?

If the noun which enough is modifying is understood, the noun can be eliminated.

I ran out of money. Do you have enough?

Yes, I have enough.

adjective
adverb + enough

Is the game exciting enough for you?

Ronald speaks English well enough to work at the embassy.

It isn't raining hard enough to take an umbrella.

The boy isn't old enough to enter the amusement ride.

Exercise 39: Using Enough

Choose the correct option from the parentheses in the following sentences.

1. Mary didn't have (time enough / enough time) to go to Mark's game.
2. Do you have (sugar enough / enough sugar) to make brownies?
3. The teacher's voice was (loud enough / enough loud) to be heard down the hall.
4. This board isn't (long enough / enough long) to finish the project.
5. Jimmy didn't have (jam enough / enough jam) for his toast.
6. Mr. Jenkins didn't get up (early enough / enough early) to make the meeting.
7. Martin found (coins enough / enough coins) to buy a comic book.
8. Our youth group raised (money enough / enough money) to go on the mission trip.
9. The train couldn't produce (steam enough / enough steam) to climb the mountain.
10. Johnny wasn't (good enough / enough good) to go on the field trip.

31. SUBJUNCTIVE

The subjunctive is used to indicate that one person wants another person to do something. The simple form of the verb is used after certain other verbs and that is always used. If that is omitted then it changes the structure of the second verb to the infinitive.

We require that he come to the office.
 We require him to come to the office.

The following verbs in the below list are used in a subjunctive sentence.

advise	demand	prefer	require ask	insist	propose	stipulate command	move	recommend	suggest decree	order	request	urge

NOTE: The verb want is not included in the above list. Want is not used in a subjunctive sentence.

In the following formula, substitute one of the verbs from the list (in any tense).

subject + verb + that + subject + verb in simple form. . .

The pilot requested that everyone fasten their seatbelts.
 My mother insists that I practice piano for an hour every day after school.
 The general commanded that his men charge up the hill.
 I propose that you do odd jobs to earn enough money for the trip.
 The powerful king decreed that his birthday be a national holiday.

Impersonal expressions which have the same meaning as the verbs above use a form of the verb be followed by certain adjectives. This form of the subjunctive also uses a simple form of the verb following it.

advised	necessary	recommended	urgent important	obligatory	required	imperative
mandatory	proposed	suggested

In the following formula, substitute one of the adjectives from the list above. The verb be can be in any singular tense (which agrees with the subject it).

it + be + adjective + that + subject + verb in simple form. . .

It was advised that we wear our lifejackets because of the bad weather.
It is obligatory that you present your passport at the airport.
It is important that they catch the first train.
It has been suggested that we arrive early for the ceremony.
It was proposed that the mayor attend the meeting at city hall.

Exercise 40: Using Subjunctives

Find and correct the errors in the following sentences. If there are no errors, write correct at the end of the sentence.

1. The professor insisted that Shelly turned in her paper.
 2. It was imperative that they stopped the bleeding immediately.
 3. It have been suggested that Shaun give the ceremonial speech.
 4. She is to propose that the meeting end early for the holiday.
 5. The president ordered that Congress takes an action on the bill soon.
 6. The officer demanded that the suspect should stop running.
 7. It was urged that they leave the island before nightfall.
 8. Johnny prefers that the girls cheer when he scores.
 9. The teacher asked that the students not stood in the middle of the hall.
 10. It was recommended that we arrive at the theater early.

Both . . . And

The correlative conjunctions both . . . and are used together in a sentence. They follow the same formula as not only . . . but also above.

Jeremy collects both stamps and baseball cards.
noun noun

The vase is both valuable and rare.
adjective adjective

She reacts both boldly and quickly.
adverb adverb

Martha cooks both at home and at work.
prep. phrase prep. phrase

Robert both plays football and receives good grades.
verb verb

As Well As

Study the following formulas for the conjunction as well as.

subject + verb +	noun	+ as well as +	noun
	adjective		adjective
	adverb		adverb
	prepositional phrase		prepositional phrase

OR

subject + verb + as well as + verb . . .

I write books as well as eBooks.
noun noun

The new movie is thrilling as well as interesting.
adjective adjective

He speaks English clearly as well as correctly.
adverb adverb

Marcia practices in the gym as well as at her home.
prep. phrase prep. phrase

Mel Gibson acts as well as directs.
verb verb

The conjunction as well as can also be used to indicate a compound subject. When this occurs, the phrase should be separated by commas. The verb in the sentence will agree with the main subject and not the noun following the conjunction.

Mike, as well as his cousins, is going to the championship game.
The teachers, as well as the principal, are invited to the conference.

Exercise 41: Using Inclusives

Fill in the blank with the missing connector in the following sentences.

1. Jonathon plays violin _____ guitar.
2. My sister bought _____ a new house but also a new car.
3. Our teacher can speak _____ English and Spanish.
4. I am learning not only to speak English _____ to teach it.
5. Alison was sweating _____ vomiting.
6. I can both rub my belly _____ pat my head.
7. The new student speaks _____ fast but also unclear.
8. Mr. Milton is my football coach _____ my baseball coach.
9. Sally is both pretty _____ intelligent.
10. Randolph is not only intelligent _____ handsome.

33. CLAUSES OF CONCESSION

Clauses of concession provide a contrast between two ideas. These clauses begin with although, even though, though, despite or in spite of.

Despite / In Spite Of

These are actually prepositions which can be used interchangeably. They have the same meaning as although, but different grammar rules apply. They can begin a sentence, or be placed in the middle of a sentence. However, as with any prepositional phrase which begins a sentence, a comma is used to separate it from the main sentence clause.

despite in spite of + noun phrase

Despite feeling badly, Aaron performed in the theatrical production.

In spite of feeling badly, Aaron performed in the theatrical production.

Our teacher was on time to class despite the heavy traffic.

Our teacher was on time to class in spite of the heavy traffic.

Although / Even Though / Though

These words are subordinate conjunctions which are used to connect two clauses. Notice the difference in grammar compared to despite and in spite of.

although even though + subject + verb + (complement) . . . though

Although Sam was tall for his age, he was too clumsy to play basketball.

Alison was very popular at school even though she had a bad attitude.

The children wanted to play outside though it was very cold.

Further examples of clauses of concession:

Despite his misbehavior, John was allowed to go on the class trip.
noun phrase

Denise competed in the race in spite of her ankle injury.
noun phrase

Though the doctor told him to quit, Alex continued to smoke.
subject + verb

She got on the airplane even though she was afraid of flying.
subject + verb

Mr. Henderson continued teaching class although he was sick.
subject + verb

Exercise 42: Using Clauses of Concession

Modify the following sentences to correctly correspond with the words in parentheses.

1. My friend showed me how to do the magic trick despite having promised to keep it a secret. (though)

2. In spite of it being expensive, Jack likes to dine at that fine restaurant. (even though)

3. Michael searched hours for his favorite photo even though he never found it. (although)

4. Mary went for a long walk though it was raining. (despite)

5. He continued to exercise although his back hurt. (in spite of)

6. The group enjoyed the concert even though it was noisy. (despite)

7. In spite of his bad grades, Greg passed the class. (though)

8. Fred asked Susie to the dance even though she didn't like him. (although)

9. Though Roger was much older than Lisa, he looked much younger. (in spite of)

10. George joined the army despite his parent's objections. (even though)

34. VAGUE PRONOUN REFERENCES

Remember, a pronoun is a word that substitutes for a noun. A vague pronoun reference occurs when it's not clear what noun a pronoun refers to. Review the following example:

Ms. Johnson gave Sally her book.

In this sentence, we do not know which noun the pronoun her refers to, Ms. Johnson or Sally.

A vague pronoun reference occurs in one of two situations:

1. When a pronoun such as it, this, that and which refers to an implied idea or word rather than a specific noun.

- He hurt his knee, and this is the reason he didn't play in the game.

In this example, this refers to an implied idea and, therefore, is not a clear reference. This sentence could be better phrased as the following:

- The fact that he hurt his knee explains why he didn't play in the game.

Another example:

- Mr. Atkins is an angry man, but he keeps it hidden.

In this example, it refers to "anger". Although the idea of anger is implied, the word anger is absent. Thus, the pronoun is referring to a noun which isn't present in the sentence. This is not good and could be better phrased as the following:

- Mr. Atkins is an angry man, but he keeps his anger hidden.

Another example:

- Steven's cheat notes got him into trouble.

Here, the pronoun him is assumed to refer to Steven. However, the subject is cheat notes so the pronoun doesn't have a noun with which to correctly link. It is better to rephrase the sentence in another way.

- His cheat notes got Steven into trouble.

2. The other situation in which a vague pronoun reference occurs is when a pronoun is used to refer to the object of a prepositional phrase.

- In a large city, it is dangerous to enter dark alleys at night.

In this example, the pronoun it refers to a large city and this is the object of the prepositional phrase in a large city. It is better to rephrase the sentence another way.

- Large cities have dark alleys that are dangerous to enter at night.

Another example:

- In the directions, they said to attach the small piece to the top of the large piece.

Here, the pronoun they refers to the directions. However, directions is the object of the prepositional phrase in the directions. It is better to rephrase the sentence another way.

- The directions say to attach the small piece to the top of the large piece.

Exercise 43: Identifying Vague Pronoun References

In the following pairs of sentences, one sentence is correct, and the other sentence contains a vague pronoun reference. Mark the CORRECT sentence.

- A_____ Mel Gibson produced Brave Heart at the height of his career and it was a phenomenal accomplishment.

B_____ Mel Gibson produced Brave Heart at the height of his career and the movie was a phenomenal accomplishment.
- A_____ Gibson received much praise and made a lot of money, but he was very modest about his achievements.

B_____ Gibson received much praise and made a lot of money, but he was very modest about it.
- A_____ Henry bought a German made car because he read that they make the best models.

B_____ Henry bought a German made car because he read that the Germans make the best models.
- A_____ Nancy was extremely overweight and it was hard.

B_____ Nancy was extremely overweight and her life was hard.
- A_____ Derrick's father wondered if Derrick were good enough to play college ball.

B_____ Derrick's father wondered if he were good enough to play college ball.
- A_____ Lowering the puppy into the mother's cage, Janet felt it bite her.

B_____ Lowering the puppy into the mother's cage, Janet felt the puppy bite her.
- A_____ At the local fair, the manager allows children under five to enter free.

B_____ At the local fair, they allow children under five to enter free.
- A_____ Mary and Allison left their purses at the table, but then they weren't sure if they were safe.

B_____ Mary and Allison left their purses at the table, but then they weren't sure if their purses were safe.
- A_____ My car scraped the farmer's fence, but the fence wasn't damaged.

B_____ My car scraped the farmer's fence, but it wasn't damaged.

35. DANGLING MODIFIERS

A modifier is a word or phrase that describes, clarifies, or gives more detail about a concept. A dangling modifier has an unclear or absent concept for which to provide more information.

Remember, in English sentences, the doer of the action must be the subject of the main clause that follows. Dangling modifiers occur when a modifying phrase begins a sentence.

INCORRECT: Having finished his dinner, a piece of cake was eaten.
CORRECT: Having finished his dinner, Bob ate a piece of cake.

In the first sentence, there is no subject to modify or to link to the pronoun.

INCORRECT: Without knowing his name, it was awkward to meet him.
CORRECT: Because Susie didn't know his name, it was awkward to meet him.

In the first sentence, it didn't know his name. The sentence needs to be revised to add a subject that who was meeting him.

Exercise 44: Correcting Sentences with Dangling Modifiers

Rewrite the sentences below with dangling modifiers so that they have proper English form.

NOTE: There may be various ways to reword these sentences.

- To teach more thoroughly, the demonstration was given again.

- After reading the original manuscript, the play lacks excitement.

- Leaving the stress of your job, your home should be a place to relax.

- The experiment was a failure, not having listened closely to instructions.

- Having been thrown in the air, the dog caught the stick.

- While playing a computer game, the telephone rang.

- Running across the floor, the rug slipped and I fell.

- Standing on the hotel balcony, the mountainous view was spectacular.

9. Being piled up next to the washer, I began doing laundry.

10. While taking out the trash, the sack broke.

36. SENTENCE FRAGMENTS

Complete sentences are used to convey complete thoughts. A complete sentence consists of a subject, verb and words to complete the thought. A sentence fragment occurs when one of these parts is omitted, leaving the receiver of the thought with insufficient or incomplete information to understand the thought.

Example:

I enjoy.

Although this sentence contains a subject and a verb, it lacks enough information to express to the receiver what it is that I enjoy. It is, therefore, a sentence fragment and needs to be completed.

I enjoy coffee in the morning.

Most sentence fragments are created when a second phrase which belongs to the first sentence is placed in a sentence of its own.

Example:

INCORRECT: Jennifer likes many activities. Such as playing golf and swimming.

CORRECT: Jennifer likes many activities such as playing golf and swimming.

The second sentence of the incorrect example is a sentence fragment because, by itself, it is not a complete sentence. It expounds on the complement noun activities. This sentence is a continuation of the first thought and should be combined with that thought.

Another example:

INCORRECT: He was a genius. Albert Einstein who was the father of modern physics.

CORRECT: Albert Einstein, who was the father of modern physics, was a genius.

This example should be combined into one idea using a nonrestrictive relative clause. The clause is not a complete sentence by itself, but adds more information about Albert Einstein and should be combined with that thought.

37. RUN-ON SENTENCES

A run-on sentence occurs when two complete sentences have been blended or fused together without the correct punctuation or linking word.

Example:

Jennifer Lopez is a famous singer, she is also a famous actress.

A comma is not strong enough to properly separate these two thoughts, and it is not an appropriate link. There are several ways to correct this sentence.

1. Create two separate sentences by using a period.

Jennifer Lopez is a famous singer. She is also a famous actress

2. Use a semi-colon to separate the sentences. A semi-colon is not as strong as a period, but strong enough to separate the two ideas.

Jennifer Lopez is a famous singer; she is also a famous actress.

3. Use a comma and a linking word to link the two ideas together. A comma provides a pause between the thoughts and the linking word continues the thought fluently.

Jennifer Lopez is a famous singer, and she is also a famous actress.

PART IV: PUNCTUATION

Optional – not tested on the Sentence Correction Section but helpful for AWA and general education

38. APOSTROPHE

Possession

When the possessor is singular, possession is indicated by using an apostrophe followed by the letter s:

The man's car
My mother's ring

When the possessors are plural, the apostrophe is placed after the final s:

All the girls' shoes
Both of his sisters' dresses

When a name ends with the letter s, two uses are acceptable:

James' home*
 OR
James's home*

The apostrophe is never used with possessive pronouns (his, hers, its, ours, yours, theirs). However, it is used with one:

One should study one's homework

Contractions

Contractions are very common in English and contractions are used in the contracted forms of words.

Examples:

I am	=	I'm
you are	=	you're she is	=	she's
we have	=	we've they are	=	they're do not	=	don't will not	=	won't should not	=	shouldn't

NOTE: Remember, an apostrophe is used to contract the words it is to it's. However, its (the possessive pronoun) does NOT use an apostrophe. Also, the form its' (with the apostrophe following the s) is never used in English.

39. COMMA

There are numerous uses for the comma, and it is the most misused punctuation mark in the English language.

A comma provides a brief pause. Study the following points for correctly using the comma and listen for the brief pause in the given examples. Strengthening an “ear” for hearing this pause will help to guide you in proper comma placement.

Use commas to separate items in a list.

Could you stop at the store and buy butter, milk, lettuce and cheese?

OR

Could you stop at the store and buy butter, milk, lettuce, and cheese?

NOTE: A comma can be used before the last item to separate it and the conjunction and (as in the second example), or it can be omitted. However, you should be consistent throughout the entire text. If you use it then use it throughout. If you omit it then omit it throughout.

Use commas to separate words and word groups when there are three or more to avoid confusion.

The million dollar lottery prize will be split between Jason, Alison, Beth, and Sue.

NOTE: If the comma is omitted after Beth, it changes the meaning of the sentence. If it is omitted then Beth and Sue will split one third of the prize (instead of it being split four ways).

The million dollar lottery prize will be split between Jason, Alison, Beth and Sue.

A comma is used to separate two or more adjectives when the word and can be placed between them.

My English teacher is a tall, strong, intelligent man.

However, you would not use a comma if the word and would not be used.

His expensive new car was destroyed in the flood.

Use a comma after a name or title when starting a sentence, or surrounding it within a sentence, when a person is addressed directly.

Carmen, will you stop at the office and pick up my briefcase?

Yes, Professor, I will follow your instructions.

NOTE: Capitalize the title when addressing someone directly.

Use a comma to separate the day and the month from the year and after the year.

Julie graduated on May 5, 2007 from Haley University.

However, if any part of the date is omitted then the comma is not used.

Julie graduated in May 2007 from Haley University.

Use a comma to separate a city from the state and after the state.

We lived in Nashville, Tennessee, for 10 years.

However, if the two letter abbreviation of the state is used, the comma is omitted after it.

We lived in Nashville, TN for 10 years.

Use commas before and after degrees or titles used with names. Commas are no longer required to separate Jr. or Sr., and they are never used to separate II, III, etc.

Andrew Whitehall, M.D., is related to Eric Stephenson Jr. and Mark Ellington II.

Use commas to separate expressions that interrupt sentence flow.

This assignment, as you can see, will be very interesting.

Use a comma after a weak clause or phrase when it begins a sentence. These are meant to follow a strong clause without a pause of interruption.

NOTE: Listen for the pause after the weaker clause. This pause is absent in the strong sentence example and, therefore, doesn't require a comma.

STRONG: Contact me when you are ready to go to the movies.

WEAK: When you are ready to go to the movies, contact me.

STRONG: You must present the necessary documents in order to come along.

WEAK: In order to come along, you must present the necessary documents.

STRONG: We will travel to Europe on Friday.

WEAK: On Friday, we will travel to Europe.

Use commas to separate a nonrestrictive relative clause.

Mr. Johnson, who has been dancing all his life, won the national dance competition.

Use a comma to separate two clauses joined by a coordinating conjunction – and, but, or, for, nor. The comma can be omitted if the two clauses are short.

Our dog ran off into the park yesterday, and we still haven't found him today.

I sing and she dances.

Use commas to introduce or interrupt direct quotations.

Mary said, "I don't like you anymore."

"Why in the world," my mother questioned, "would you do such a thing?"

Use a comma to separate a statement from a question.

You're going to the beach with us this weekend, aren't you?

Use a comma to separate contrasting segments of a sentence.

Those are our seats, not yours.

Use a comma when you begin a sentence with an introductory word, such as yes, well, or now.

Yes, I should finish my homework.

Well, if you put it that way then I will have to agree.

Now, should you finish your test early then sit quietly.

Use commas before and/or after words, such as however or therefore when they interrupt a sentence.

My boss, therefore, would like for us to work next Saturday.

However, I will agree to the terms if you can guarantee a return on my money.

Use a comma (or semicolon) before introductory words, such as namely, that is, i.e., for example, e.g., or for instance.

You may be required to provide important documentation, namely a driver's license, social security card, and birth certificate.

OR

You may be required to provide important documentation; namely a driver's license, social security card, and birth certificate.

Use a comma in a conditional sentence that uses the word then when omitting it.

If Johnny studies very hard then he will pass Algebra.

If Johnny studies very hard, he will pass Algebra.

Should you meet Alice at the meeting then tell her I need to see her.

Should you meet Alice at the meeting, tell her I need to see her.

40. SEMICOLON

A semicolon provides a stronger pause than a comma, but is not quite as strong as a full stop (period). Study the following proper uses of the semicolon.

Link Two Independent Clauses

Use a semicolon to link together two independent clauses when not using a conjunction.

Some people like to take the bus to work; others like to take the train.

Link Lists When Items Contain Commas

Use a semicolon to link together two or more lists when the items contain commas. This is done to avoid confusion between the listed items.

When you go to town, could you pick up some things: eggs, bacon, and bread from the grocery; and nails and caulk from the hardware?

Link Lengthy Clauses Containing Commas

Use a semicolon to link together lengthy clauses when they contain commas to avoid confusion.

There are basically two ways in which people like to commute to work: by taking a bus, which offers more boarding points, but is small and crowded; or by taking a train, which is limited in boarding points, but offers more space and is often faster.

Link Clauses Connected by Conjunctive Adverbs or Transitional Phrases

Use a semicolon to link together clauses which are connected by either conjunctive adverbs or transitional phrases.

But however they choose to commute, people have various options to choose from; as a result, city commuter population usually flows steady and uninterrupted.

41. COLON

A colon is used to show that information is following. Study the following correct uses of the colon.

Introduce a List

Use a colon to introduce a list of items.

After inspection, your vehicle requires several replacements: tires, battery cables, and a fan belt.

Introduce a Quotation that Follows an Introductory Sentence

Use a colon to introduce a quotation which follows an introductory sentence.

Will Rogers once wisely stated: "Never let yesterday use up too much of today."

After a Formal Business Letter Salutation

Use a colon after the salutation of a formal business letter.

Dear Sir:

Dear Madam:

Dear Dr. Laughlin:

Between Standard Hours and Minutes of Time

Use a colon to separate hours and minutes of standard time.

9:30 A.M.

12:45 P.M.

NOTE: A colon is NOT used in military (24-hour clock) time.

1430 hrs.

42. DASH

Separate a Strong Sentence Interruption

Use a dash before and after a strong interruption within a sentence (a strong interruption forcefully disrupts the flow of the sentence and usually contains a verb).

Everyone says that they want peace on earth – some work very hard to achieve it – but it is much easier said than done.

Only one dash is used when the strong interruption comes at the beginning or end of the sentence.

I had dinner at the new restaurant – but it made me severely sick.

Add Emphasis

Use a dash to add emphasis to a thought.

She said that she would win the competition – and she did!

Link Two Connected Words

Use a dash to link two words which are connected.

*I took the Dallas-Houston bus to go on vacation.
The Masters-Douglas wedding is scheduled for 10 A.M. this Saturday.*

Indicate a Range of Numbers

Use a dash to indicate a range of numbers.

*Our active client list grew by 2000-3000 this year.
The reservation for our company consisted of sections 1-7 at the Wellington Theater.*

After a Quotation to Indicate the Author

Use a dash after a quotation to separate it from the author.

“It's not the will to win, but the will to prepare to win that makes the difference.” - Paul "Bear" Bryant

43. HYPHEN

HYPHENS BETWEEN WORDS

There are several uses of hyphens in between words. Study the following examples of the correct use of hyphens.

Compound Nouns

Hyphens are sometimes used in between compound nouns. However, you may need to check a dictionary if you have doubts whether the word should be hyphenated or not as some are combined, some don't use hyphens, and some do use them.

eye-opener	-	compound noun which is hyphenated
eye shadow	-	compound noun which has two separate nouns, unhyphenated
eyewitness	-	compound noun which is written as one word

Compound Verbs

Compound verbs can either be written as one word or are hyphenated. Again, you may need to use a dictionary. If you do not find a compound verb in the dictionary then hyphenate it.

Because of the extreme summer heat, we decided to air-condition our new house.

Compound Adjectives

Use a hyphen between two or more adjectives when they indicate a single idea and come before a noun.

Ugly-looking creature	-	compound adjective before a noun with a single idea
Ugly, old room	-	two separate adjectives before a noun

Compound Adverbs

Use a hyphen when compound adverbs not ending in -ly are used before a noun. When used after a noun, do not hyphenate.

HYPHENATE:	The well-known author is signing books at our local library.
DON'T HYPHENATE:	The author signing books at our library is well known.

Other examples of hyphenated adverbs:

The long-awaited test scores were finally released.
Mary received her much-needed makeover this afternoon.

Numbers and Fractions

Hyphenate all numbers from twenty-one through ninety-nine.

Thirty-one of our graduating class went on to university.
 Christopher counted fifty-six deer in the pasture yesterday evening.

Also, hyphenate all fractions which are spelled out.

George cut his sandwich into four pieces and gave each of us one-third.
 More than one-half of the football team came down with food poisoning.

Hyphens with Prefixes

The current trend is to remove unnecessary hyphens from words with prefixes. Many words that used to carry hyphens are now simply combined with prefixes without hyphens.

copayment semiconscious noncompliant thirtyish

However, there are still several situations which require hyphens when prefixes are used. Study the following examples of the correct use of hyphens with prefixes.

Proper Nouns

Hyphenate prefixes when they are used with proper nouns.

The rally held downtown was un-American.
My father was anti-Nixon.

Vowel-ending Prefix with Vowel-beginning Root

Use a hyphen when a prefix ends in an a or i and the root word begins with the same letter.

semi-interesting ultra-annoying

Sometimes a hyphen is used, and sometimes it isn't when the prefix ends in an e or o and the root word begins in the same letter. You should check a dictionary if you are not sure whether a hyphen is or is not used for a specific case.

NOT USED: preexclusive coordinate USED: co-owner re-emphasize

Generally a hyphen is NOT used when the prefix begins with one vowel and the root word begins with another vowel.

antiageing proactive

Words with the Prefix Self

Use a hyphen with all words beginning with the word self except for selfish and selfless.

self-respect

self-addressed

self-assured

Words with the Prefix Ex

Use a hyphen with the prefix ex.

ex-wife

ex-husband

Words with the Prefix Re

Use a hyphen with words beginning with the prefix re ONLY when omitting the hyphen causes confusion with another word.

Look at the following examples. A hyphen is used in the first sentence to distinguish the word from a word which is spelled the same without using a hyphen.

A professional seamstress re-covered my old car seats.

My aunt has recovered from her illness.

I had to re-press my pants because they were wrinkled from sitting all day.

Doug needs to repress his anger before it gets him into trouble.

About GMAT Club:

Every year, brilliant minds of business school applicants develop strategies, research school information, and master interviews, only for the same process to be repeated the following year by the new applicant pool. In 2002, GMAT Club was formed to help preserve the collective knowledge of MBA students – to contribute to each other's learning. Through information sharing and the development of new resources, it is our goal to improve the Business School application process.
